HER LIFE WAS TAKEN BY FIRE

BEAUTIFUL GIRL IS BURNED TO DEATH: MOTHER IS INJURED

Miss Bessie Lyon, 19 Years Old, Dies of Burns She Received at Her Home on Wednesday Afternoon

MOTHER HURT PAINFULLY TRYING TO SAVE HER

Young Woman Is Daughter of Superintendent of the Austell Building and Is Well Known

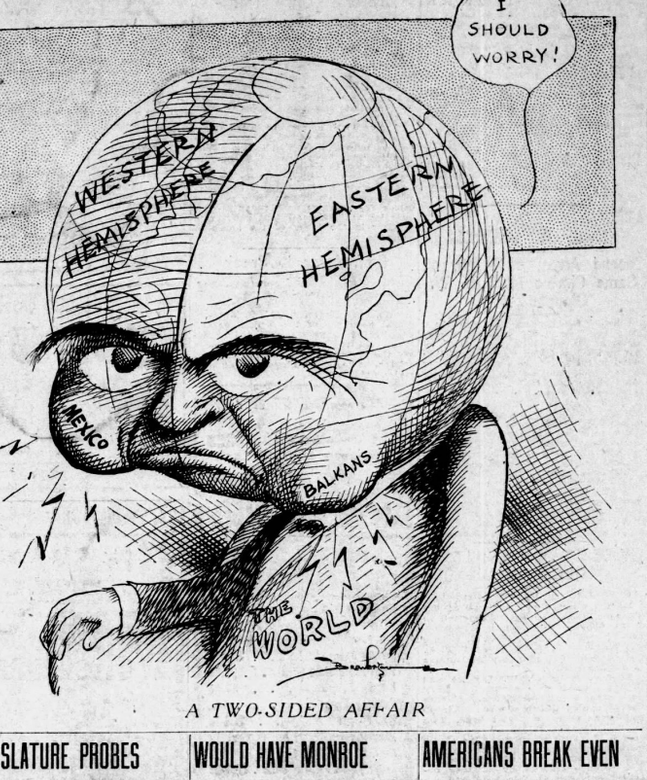
Miss Bessie Lyon, nineteen years old, of 349 Capitol avenue, passed away Thursday night from burns she received Wednesday afternoon at her home, and her mother, Mrs. Lillie Lyon, is in a serious condition from burns sustained by herself when she attempted vainly to save the young woman.

At the time of the accident Miss Lyon and her mother were alone in the family's apartment on the second floor of the address given. Miss Lyon was burning some trash in the grate. For a moment she turned away from the flames, says her mother, and her skirt caught. Almost instantly she was enveloped in fire. Mrs. Lyon attempted to beat it out with her bare hands, but could accomplish nothing, and her daughter, screaming, ran downstairs, where B. Clein, whose family occupies the lower portion of the residence, caught her and smothered the fire with rugs and quilts.

Miss Lyon was removed to the Georgian hospital, four blocks away, and her burns were dressed at once. In spite of the best of attention, she sank gradually, and 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon she became unconscious. At 9:30 o'clock Thursday evening she died.

Miss Lyon was the daughter of Mr. Robert L. Lyon, superintendent of the Austell building. A sister, Miss Annie Lee Lyon, and one brother, Robert L. Lyon, Jr., survive her, in addition to her parents. She had attended the public schools of the city, being a pupil in work recently at Marietta Street school. But for some time past she had been studying music with particular attention to vocal culture. She was a member of the Capitol Avenue Baptist Sunday school.

The body will be sent to Ball Ground, Ga., Saturday for funeral and interment.



A TWO-SIDED AFFAIR

FRANK WILL LIKELY FACE TRIAL MONDAY FOR PHAGAN CRIME

Defense Subpoenaes 150 Witnesses, and If Any of the Chief Witnesses Are Ill, Continuance Can Be Asked

JUDGE ROAN, WHO WAS ILL, IS REPORTED IMPROVED

Indications Now Are That Defense Will Make No Effort to Have Trial Put Off—144 Veniremen Summoned

The stage is set for the trial of Leo M. Frank for the murder of Mary Phagan on April 26.

Veniremen and witnesses for the defense are being summoned. The witnesses for the state are already under subpoena.

Judge L. S. Roan, who was ill Thursday, is better and ready for the trial. Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will insist on a trial.

The attitude of the defense alone is problematical. Neither the state nor the defense is required to announce ready or not ready before a case is actually called in the court room, and apparently there will be no information from the defense until 9 o'clock Monday morning, when the clerk calls the name of the defendant in Atlanta's most sensational murder case.

DEFENSE SUMMONS 150.

The defense is summoning approximately 150 witnesses. It is said the majority of these witnesses will testify to Frank's character in event the defense decides to put it in issue. About thirty of the witnesses are material to the case of the defense, and the absence or inability of a witness to attend court would be sufficient grounds for a postponement of the case, as would be the illness of the defendant or one of his counsel.

STATE IS READY.

All of the witnesses for the, state have been served with subpenas, and without exception, according to court attaches, they have expressed their willingness to be in the court room Monday morning.

There is now little probability that the trial will be postponed on account of weather conditions, although some days ago it was suggested that the trial would be too tedious to enter into during the summer months.

It is said that because of the fact that Solicitor Dorsey will insist upon an early trial, the inability of one of the material witnesses for the defense to be present Monday would only serve to delay the case for a few days until he could be gotten into court. In case the commencement of the trial is delayed a short time, or in case the trial lasts longer than is generally expected, it is said that Judge Roan has secured the consent of Judge W. D. Ellis to preside in other parts of the circuit if he is needed there.

EXTRAORDINARY MOTION.

In fact, it now appears that only the probability of an extraordinary motion by Attorney Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold, who represent Frank, stands in the way of the actual commencement of the trial. Neither of the attorneys for the defense has intimated that such a motion will be made Monday morning.

The Frank trial will be staged in the court room on the first floor of the old city hall, the room generally occupied by the judge presiding over the motion division of the civil branch of the superior court.

This is the largest and coolest of the rooms now in use by the Fulton courts.

Deputy Sheriff Pennie Minor, who will have charge of the court room during the trial, has doubled the usual number of seats in the room, and probably 200 people can be accommodated, although it is expected that no spectators will be allowed to stand in the room.

MANY TO BE REJECTED.

It is generally expected that the jury to try Frank will not be chosen completely from the 144 now served.

The state has ten peremptory challenges, and the defense twenty. It is expected that every challenge will be used, eliminating thirty of the 144 veniremen. So great is the interest in the case and so widely has it been discussed that many of the veniremen have formed and expressed opinions on the case.

Again, it is a murder case and many

Ambassador Wilson in New York; Indicates That He's in Favor Of Recognizing Huerta Regime

Declares He Stands Pat on Everything He Has Done and Expects to Be Returned to Mexico—Scoffs at Mediation—Mum on Intervention

NEW YORK, July 25.—Henry Lane Wilson, American ambassador to Mexico, returned to the United States today and took first place before President Wilson and the state department his suggestions regarding a solution of the troubled affairs in Mexico.

These suggestions do not include, he said, any idea of sending an American commission into Mexico to offer mediation. Mr. Wilson opposed also a proposition that a tripartite commission be organized, made up of the representatives of the United States and two South American republics, to bring about peace between the warring factions.

MEDIATION "ALL ROT."

While declining to enter into an extended discussion of any plans or to offer any remedy of his own, Mr. Wilson characterized the mediation plan as "all rot."

The proposal for a tripartite commission, Mr. Wilson said, is not a feasible one.

That is a plan of John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics," he said. "The circulars recited that Mattiford had eloped with Mrs. Barwick, aged forty-three, taking John A. Barwick, Jr., aged five, and Dorothy Elizabeth Barwick, aged nine, and Mrs. Barwick's mother, Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, with them. Mrs. Jeter also is under indictment as an accessory to the alleged kidnaping.

MATTIFORD IS ARRESTED BY POLICE IN BOSTON

Atlanta Man Charged With Aiding in Kidnaping Barwick Children

John R. McCarr, chief inspector of the police of Boston, Mass., telegraphed Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Friday afternoon, that John D. Mattiford, wanted in Fulton county under an indictment charging him with having helped to kidnap the two children of John A. Barwick, head bookkeeper of the Exposition Cotton mills, had been arrested there.

Mattiford formerly lived in an Atlanta hotel. The Boston police are holding him for the action of the Atlanta officers.

A circular was scattered throughout the United States by the Atlanta police on May 19, with pictures of Mattiford and Mrs. Bertha Evelyn Barwick, mother of the children, asking that wherever they were found they be detained without bond until the Atlanta officers could go for them. The circulars recited that Mattiford had eloped with Mrs. Barwick, aged forty-three, taking John A. Barwick, Jr., aged five, and Dorothy Elizabeth Barwick, aged nine, and Mrs. Barwick's mother, Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, with them. Mrs. Jeter also is under indictment as an accessory to the alleged kidnaping.

MUM ON INTERVENTION.

The ambassador said he did not care to commit himself on the question of American intervention, as he must reserve his views in this matter for his conference with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan.

"Lots has been said in the American newspapers about American intervention and perhaps some of it is inspired by persons who would be interested in American control of Mexico," was his comment.

Mr. Wilson said he expected to go back to Mexico as American ambassador. "I have received no intimation from Washington that I am to be dismissed," he declared. "I expect to be returned. I see no reason why I should not be. I stand pat today on everything I have done."

SEEMS TO FAVOR HUERTA.

While not saying specifically that he favored recognition of the Huerta government by the United States, Ambassador Wilson indicated that it is his view that recognition should be given. In February, subsequent to the overthrow of the Madera regime, Mr. Wilson said he sent to American Consul General Hanna at Monterey a telegram suggesting him to inform all consular officers under Mr. Hanna's jurisdiction that Huerta had been established as Mexico's provisional head.

President Goes Slow In Mexican Situation

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—It is not true that President Wilson has determined to offer mediation for the settlement of the Mexican situation. It is not true that he has decided to cut off the shipment of arms from this country to either President Huerta or any of the other warring factions of Mexico. Nor is it true that he has decided to permit all factions to secure arms and munitions of war on equal terms from this country.

It is true that the president has not decided upon any step for the solution of the Mexican question and this is one thought final that fact. So many rumors and reports have been circulated during the past few days that sometimes even the White House has found it necessary to issue an official denial. All of the steps here outlined, and others have been cited as alleged facts, have gone so far as to assert administration authority, and all of them are wrong.

THE REAL SITUATION.

The situation is this: The president fully realizes the gravity of the situation in Mexico. He stands ready to use any measure which will bring peace to that country, but he does not know what, if anything, he should or could do to accomplish the desired end. He is seeking information from all reliable sources. He is striving to keep an open mind on all phases of the subject, and when he has ascertained sufficient to assure himself that he knows what the condition of things in Mexico is, then he will take steps toward a solution, if such steps appear the right thing to do.

In the meantime he has talked of mediation, and he has talked of stopping the shipment of arms to Huerta and to all the other factions. Likewise he has given thought to the idea of permitting all factions to buy arms in the United States and take them into Mexico at their own risk. He has considered the project of asking one or more of the stronger governments of South America to join in the negotiations looking toward mediation.

But he has not done anything in that or any other direction, and will not until he feels he knows the truth about Mexico, and he will not even then unless he has good and satisfactory reason to believe he is doing the best thing for both Mexico and this country.

President Wilson is profoundly impressed with the fact that any ill-considered step by the United States would amount to juggling with human lives. The possibility is never out of his mind that action by this government in the wrong direction might start a massacre of Americans in all parts of Mexico, and after that, of course, would come war, with all the lives and money expended in an effort which might be lost.

While Guests Await Rappings by Spirit, Widow Weds Banker

UNION HILL, N. J., July 25.—Mrs. Mary Hoppel, who has taken up spiritualism since the death of her husband in an automobile accident a year ago, invited all her friends to attend a "spirit seance" in her home last night. They sat in the dark in the parlor, waiting for rappings from another world, when the folding doors suddenly swung back and a flood of light revealed Mrs. Hoppel hand in hand with Frederick Brueffcher, a retired banker, and with them a minister, who performed a wedding ceremony before the astonished guests realized what was happening.

"A spirit came to me" explained Mrs. Hoppel "and ordered me to search out Frederick Brueffcher and marry him. I knew him years ago but I had lost track of him." Within three days after she had found him she said the desired proposal was made. "It is a spiritual wedding," she added, "and is not to be judged by earthly unions."

HERE'S A GOOD CHANCE TO MAKE BIG MONEY

Government Wants Americans to Raise Foxes in Alaska

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Several Canadians have written to the department of commerce seeking to buy some of the blue and silver foxes from the government's preserves in Alaska, but no citizen of the United States has made similar request, although the department is anxious to get Americans to go in for fox breeding.

Assistant Secretary Sweet declared today that good profits await those who take up the industry. The government, he said, has several small islands off the Alaskan coast, which it will lease to any one who desires them for fox farming, and at the same time the government will furnish breeding animals at low prices.

There are several fox-raising establishments in Canada, said Mr. Sweet, which are reported to be making big profits, and as the skins bring fancy prices in London, the center of the fur selling trade, he thought citizens of the United States should be reaping part of the returns.

LEGISLATURE PROBES AUGUSTA MARTIAL LAW

Military Affairs Committee Investigates Killings During Street Car Strike

Legislative investigation of the killing of three citizens by members of the state militia in Augusta last year during the street railroad strike there, was begun at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon before the house committee on military affairs, upon a resolution by Representative Beck of Carroll, chairman of the committee.

This matter was sifted by a military courtmartial at Augusta last year, the militiamen concerned being exonerated.

Representative Beck was not satisfied with the verdict of the courtmartial and wished the matter reopened. He so stated when he argued his resolution to the house recently.

Present at the hearing was the widow of one of the men who was killed—Mrs. Robert Christie. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. S. Dunbar.

Sheriff John W. Clark, of Richmond county, also was present. C. E. Dunbar, of Augusta, formerly a member of the legislature, appeared as the representative of the citizens who were killed.

It was said that Representative Beck has a number of affidavits which will be considered by the committee.

UNCLE SAM GETS $1,105 SALE OF DEAD LETTERS

Many Purchasers Found for Articles Carelessly Addressed

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—When officials of the "dead letter" branch of the postoffice department today finished counting the dimes, nickels and pennies derived from the annual "dead letter" sale, they discovered that the United States government was $1,105.75 richer as the result of carelessness on the part of those who in the past year entrusted badly directed matter to the mails. No parcel post was in this sale as that department has not been established long enough to permit of the sale of uncalled for packages.

The articles disposed of were of the usual variety, and, under a recent ruling by the department, were opened for inspection by would-be purchasers before being offered for sale. Objection in the past to the "lottery" form of selling the packages at auction to the highest bidder, who trusted to luck to win a prize, aroused so much criticism that it was abandoned. One purchaser bought thirty-five cases of picture postal cards, containing more than a half million cards for $171.50. A case of cheap jewelry went to another purchaser for $155. The bidders were largely dealers from Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Clark Resolution Apparently Result of the Strained Situation in Mexico

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—In the face of the strained situation in Mexico, a concurrent resolution strongly reaffirming the Monroe doctrine was introduced in the house today by Representative Clark, of Florida. The resolution, which was referred to the foreign affairs committee, was directed particularly against "people who whom the

DAVID LAMAR WILL FIGHT EXTRADITION TO NEW YORK

"Wolf of Wall Street" Determined to Stay in District of Columbia

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Any attempt to remove David Lamar, the "wolf of Wall street," from the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia will be resisted, according to Mr. Lamar's attorney, Henry E. Davis, who expected efforts would be made today to serve warrants on his client based on the indictment found by a federal grand jury in New York.

Lamar, who recently testified before the senate "lobby" investigating committee that he had impersonated public men in telephone conversations in his Wall street campaigns, was indicted for "posing as an officer of the government for purposes of fraud."

Attorney Davis declared the warrant would be resisted because at the present time it would be "inconvenient" for his client to go to New York.

"I have heard that the warrant was to be served today," he said. "I do not know personally what is in the indictments against Mr. Lamar, for, despite my efforts to obtain a copy of the true bill, I have been denied that privilege. My client is ready to appear before United States Commissioner Taylor here, but he will fight any attempt to remove him from Washington at this time.

Lamar has been living in a downtown hotel since he gave his testimony to the senate committee.

PRESS MEETING IS A FOWL HOODOO

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GREENSBORO, Ga., July 25.—For the past two years the annual pilgrimage of Editor James C. Williams, of the Greensboro Herald-Journal, to the meeting of the Georgia Weekly Press association, has brought a large loss of chickens to his poultry yard.

Last year his yard was visited on two occasions during his absence by chicken purloiners who secured something over 100 frying size fowls.

This week the rats have invaded his hen houses and killed several dozen of his choice frying size chickens, and he is now leading a campaign against rats, similar to the crusade he led against the thieves last year.

AMERICANS BREAK EVEN AT TENNIS IN ENGLAND

Maurice E. M'Loughlin Is Defeated by J. C. Parke Friday

(By Associated Press.)

WIMBLEDON, England, July 25.—The United States and England broke even today in the first day's play for the cup. Each side won one of the two singles matches.

J. C. Parke, in the first match, beat Maurice E. McLoughlin, the American champion, by three sets to two. In the second match, R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, turned the tables on C. P. Dixon, of England, by beating him with a similar score.

Three matches remain to be played, one doubles match, which will be contested tomorrow, and two singles on Monday next.

The play has been so even that either side appears to have an even chance of winning.

"Never mind, Tom," said his friend Harry, "just do as I did when I had the same experience last year. I simply ran a little Journal Want Ad once, and I got a fine tenant who took my place the rest of the Summer, and has it this year again."

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU WILL BE REORGANIZED

Successor to Willis L. Moore Selected, but His Name Is Being Withheld

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25—Reorganization of the weather bureau is to be made on the result of a report today to Secretary Houston by a special committee appointed some time ago to investigate the bureau's workings.

The changes recommended will not be effective all at one time. Secretary Houston said he was not ready to announce what they would be, but it is known that economies will result in certain lines by doing away with duplications.

No successor to Willis L. Moore has been announced, though a man has been selected.

MODEL ROAD BEING CUT TO PIECES BY LOGGING

Brooks County Commissioners Asked to Take Steps to Save Government Pike

QUITMAN, Ga., July 25.—Complaints have reached the county commissioners that the mile of model road built by the government road department last winter is being damaged seriously by the passage of logging wagons over it, and that there is no means of preventing the mill people from using the public road, even if their wagons do cut them to pieces.

The county is insured, however, against the expenses entailed by repairing the roads thus damaged, as each mill owner is required to give a bond of $500 and it is a misdemeanor to use a public road in this county for logging purposes without giving such a bond. After the road had been used a committee of three was named to assess the damages to the road and the mill has to pay this sum.

Brooks is the only county in Georgia, where such a law exists, the legislature having killed all the other measures providing for similar laws in other counties.

The protest in regard to using the mile of model road by logging trains was based on the fact that this road was built at considerable expense as an example of what can be done with clay and sand in road construction. It is a beautiful piece of road and has been kept in perfect repair by farmers living on it, who contract with the county to use a road drag on the road after every rain.

CORN CLUB PRIZES IN JACKSON AND BUTTS

Prizes Amounting to $400 Have Been Raised—Crops in Fine Shape

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

This is the second year of the Corn club work in Butts county and results greater than expected are being accomplished. Last year the club had only thirty-two members, while over fifty joined this year.

The boys are said to have their work well in hand and some good yields are expected this fall. The highest yield last year was ninety-two bushels, and a new record will probably be made by the members of the club in 1913.

Two other stills were raided on the widest part of Lookout Mountain. The places were inaccessible except for one narrow pass, which was always guarded. BRAZIL NOW TO ACCEPT MERIDIAN OF GREENWICH

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Brazil, which has been one of the few commercial nations holding out for its own meridian as a base for calculation of time, finally has fallen in line with the great nations of the world, and has accepted the meridian of Greenwich for the ascertaining of official time as set forth in advices just received here. Furthermore the country is divided into zones and a system of standard time established much as prevails in the United States.

Some idea of the geographical extent of the country is conveyed by the fact that there is three hours difference in time between eastern and western Brazil, corresponding to the standard time limit in the United States.

Is It Backsliding?

UNLESS it is making the right kind of progress, it's going backward, sure as you live.

¶ And your town isn't making the right kind of progress unless the health conditions, the sanitation, the lighting, the paving, and other physical aspects are what they ought to be.

¶ Has your town correct sewerage?

¶ Is the water supply pure and plentiful?

¶ Is fever liable to break out and take toll of the little children? Are there disease-breeding places to menace the homes of your people?

¶ Is the lighting system adequate to the needs of a wide-awake American town?

¶ Are the paving conditions the kind you ought to have?

¶ The best paying investment any town can make is to spend money enough to make itself a good place to live in.

IMPROVEMENTS that make for the health and comfort of the people are the biggest dividend-producers on earth.

¶ Efficient work, efficient citizenship, efficient service to the community are possible only when the physical conditions are what they should be.

¶ Our business is to bring about correct physical conditions for towns that need them.

¶ We are Municipal Engineers and we can do for YOUR town what we have done for more than 300 other towns and cities. We plan, design, estimate, finance and construct sanitary systems, water and power plants and paving.

¶ What does your town want? Write us and let us know what's on your mind. We'd like to tell you what we have accomplished in other places, never a fall-down or a break in carrying out our contracts. We believe we can demonstrate that we are the people you need.

Booklovers' Bulletin

We know our big family of Booklovers are anxious, and want news of the campaign.

Since the middle of last week the Campaign Editor and his force have been busy receiving, stamping and stacking away answers. As the last of the answers were in by 10 a. m. Tuesday, a meeting of the Judges was called and Hon. M. L. Brittain, Major R. J. Guinn and Howard S. Cole responded and organized by electing Hon. M. L. Brittain chairman. After explaining to them the system of special stamping each set of answers as they were received, and examining those so stamped, it was decided to add one more safeguard to the sets, and it was ordered that all sets be listed and renumbered, and The Journal's private seal stamped over the number. Then the original stamp with which all the sets were stamped was destroyed in the presence of the Judges. The listing and renumbering of the sets will take several days, and then the Judges will have another meeting, examine the work, and the Chairman will receive a duplicate list of all contestants' names and addresses, with their numbers. This will be a guarantee to the contestants that no set of answers can be slipped in or counted in any way after the checking of answers has begun. As soon as this work is completed and the checking is started, we will publish two pictures a day with the correct titles. Watch The Journal for particulars, as we will keep you posted right along.

M'CRORY DEFENDS HIS FIGHT FOR CHEAP BOOKS

Attack on Bill by I. L. McNair Unfair and Misleading, Declares Representative

Editor The Journal:

Will you allow me space to correct statements made by I. L. McNair in a pamphlet mailed to each member of the general assembly. He commences by saying "School children in the province of Ontario, Canda, may buy a primer for 5 cents. Children in the United States pay 25 cents for a primer. Why? This question has been raised in many quarters and has even been debated among legislators. A writer in the Saturday Evening Post of December 14, 1912, asserted that millions of dollars annually might be saved to American parents by having the government go into the book business. He asserted also that school books sold in Ontario were equal in every respect to those sold at higher prices in the United States. Later, after examining the facts, the Saturday Evening Post of April 19, receded from its position and published a substantial retraction as follows."

Mr. McNair then produces part only of the article published on April 19, by the Saturday Evening Post. Why did he not publish all of the article? Was it for the purpose of deception, or was it because he could not understand that the Saturday Evening Post retracted nothing?

Read the concluding paragraph of the article and judge for yourself who was the author of the article in question. The article concludes as follows:

"American school book publishers feel that some statements in the article in question reflect unfairly on their business. They particularly resent the statement that it would be possible to save American parents millions of dollars annually by having the government go into the school book business. They assert that our annual expenditure for text-books is only about twelve million dollars, and that this sum is divided among more than sixty competing concerns. In justice to these publishing houses, the Saturday Evening Post is glad to present their side of the question."

Any retraction here by the editors? If so, where? If the gentlemen in charge of the Lanier High school only use part of each article and jumps at conclusions, as in this case, then our sympathy is with the patrons of the school. In all fairness, should he not have added the above paragraph instead of trying to make it appear it was an editorial?

As all the other statements in the pamphlet are as misleading as the one here, space forbids a reply in detail.

Respectfully yours,

C. R. M'CRORY.

SEABOARD TRAIN WRECKED ENTERING ATLANTA YARDS

Engine and Two Coaches Derailed—Negro Fireman Reported Badly Hurt

Seaboard train No. 17, local from Athens to Atlanta, was wrecked one mile short of its destination, just as it was entering the Atlanta Union depot yards, shortly after 9 o'clock Friday morning. It was derailed automatically when the engineer, it is said, disregarded a block signal set against him.

The engine and coal tender were turned over and all the woodwork demolished. Only one passenger coach was derailed and no passengers were reported injured.

The only serious injury reported was to Albert Wallace, negro fireman. He was thrown probably thirty feet across the track, and at the hospital was said to be in a precarious condition. Cicero A. Tennant, of Abbeville, S. C., the engineer, was slightly hurt on one arm.

The wreck happened near the Western and Atlantic railway junction at the rear of the National furniture factory and the Atlanta Wire and Iron works. The track was torn up for a distance of 150 feet, but the wrecking crew started to work within a short time after the accident and soon cleared it up.

According to a statement made by Tennant to fellow trainmen, it is said, the man running the block signal gave him the sign to go on, but reversed it immediately because an A. B. & A. train was backing out of the yard. When this occurred the block signal closed automatically, throwing the wrecker into place, and before Tennant could stop his train, he is reported as saying, it was derailed.

Traffic was not blocked by the derailment. Several hundred people, mostly employes from neighborhood factories, soon turned out to watch the wrecking crew at work.

BURGLARS ARE BOUND OVER ON $6,000 BOND

T. W. Reeves and R. W. Miller, captured the other night in a sensational raid by the police just as they were burglarizing the store of Robert Gober, 30 Carroll street, were bound over to the higher courts Thursday afternoon by ecorder Broyles. Their bonds were fixed at $6,000 each. Several detectives testified against them. Neither of the accused men made a statement. Their "pal," a city detective who worked with them, did not appear in court. Reeves lives on Stonewall street and Miller lives in Red Oak. Reeves formerly was a railroad detective in Atlanta.

The charges against the men are that they attempted to rob the store of B. F. Byfield, 452 W. Hunter street; that they robbed the store of obert Gober, 30 Carroll street; that they robbed E. M. Davis, the night watchman there; that they burglarized the store of Keey Bros., 72-74 Peters street, and that they stole three suit cases, the owners of which were M. U. Mooty, of LaGrange and Miss Roberta Curtis of 249 Gordon street, Atlanta.

Ware Held for Stabbing

M. B. Ware was fined $25 and costs and bound over to the state under $500 bond for stabbing B. Goodman. The stabbing occurred Thursday afternoon on Peachtree street. Goodman claims he does not know why he was cut. Ware refused to make a statement either upon arrest or in court. Dr. G. disclaims any relation to the assailant.

WRECK OF ATHENS ACCOMMODATION FRIDAY MORNING

Engineer C. A. Tennant escaped serious injury by hoping from his cab as the engine overturned. The negro fireman, Albert Wallace, was seriously injured. No passengers were hurt. The derailment occurred about 9 o'clock Friday morning near Curran street, as the Seaboard train was entering the city slightly behind time.

FRANK HAMMOND HAS OPINION ON MEXICO

Frank Hammond, secretary of Mayor Woodward, back from a trip through the west, brings with him an opinion on the Mexican situation, having crossed into Mexico and passed within forty miles of Juarez on his way home.

"President Wilson will be forced to intervene," in Mr. Hammond's conclusion. He says the information that he possesses is vouched for by responsible Americans who still are within the borders of the republic. Huerta's administration is about to fall, says he. Thousands of refugees are camped along the border in Texas and Arizona waiting for some action by President Wilson. He says Americans are being beaten and robbed repeatedly on the streets of Juarez.

"Foreigners look to the United States for deliverance," he concludes.

CITY'S DISPOSAL SYSTEM IS LARGEST IN WORLD

Three Sewage Plants Have Capacity of 16,000,000 Gallons Per Day

When the new disposal plants at Intrenchment creek and Peachtree creek are completed, Atlanta will have the largest sewage purification system of its kind in the world. That is, it will have the largest system using the Imhoff tanks and the filter beds, a system which experts have pronounced the most satisfactory. The largest plant using the Imhoff tanks without the filter beds is in the Emscher district, which is the coaling section of Germany. There 125 tanks are in use.

Atlanta's system will have 63 Imhoff tanks, 6 acres of filtering beds and a capacity of 16,000,000 gallons of sewage every twenty-four hours.

The three big pipes leading to the three plants have a combined capacity of 170,000,000 gallons, though at present that capacity is in excess of Atlanta's need. The two pipes at Intrenchment creek and Peachtree creek each have a capacity of 40,000,000 gallons and the big one at Peachtree creek has a capacity of 90,000,000 gallons.

At Proctor creek, the first plant which was completed, about a year ago, there are twelve Imhoff tanks; at Peachtree creek, thirty tanks, and at Intrenchment creek, twenty tanks.

The Peachtree plant is only two and two-thirds larger than the Proctor creek plant. It has a capacity of 8,000,000 gallons in twenty-four hours, while the Proctor creek plant can handle 3,000,000 gallons. The capacity of the Intrenchment creek plant is 5,000,000 gallons. This is under ordinary circumstances, and Superintendent H. L. Clayton, chief of construction, says that for several days at a time the plants could handle double that amount.

Large as the plants are, Captain Clayton says that in less than five years new filtering beds will have to be added if the city continues to grow as it has in the past. The beds, however can be added at a comparatively small cost, and, though later it will be necessary to increase the number of tanks, the need for more filtering beds will come first.

The Proctor creek plant cost approximately $108,000. The Peachtree plant will cost about $196,000, and the Intrenchment creek plant will cost about $171,000, a total of nearly $500,000.

WEST PEACHTREE GRADING WILL BE STARTED SOON

City Will Furnish Material and County Will Furnish the Labor

The city is advertising for bids for material for the regrading of West Peachtree street, and as soon as possible after the contracts are signed the county will begin work with the county convicts.

The regrading will be between Alexander street and Pine street and at the lowest point West Peachtree will be raised five feet.

The bids for rubble stone will be opened Friday at the meeting of the street committee.

The city is also advertising for bids on paving material for a number of streets in Ansley Park. In accordance with its new policy, the city will get bids on all kinds of street paving materials, such as rock and cheri, concrete, bituminous macadam and similar pavings, and when the bids are opened will select the material best suited for a given street. This competitive bidding will enable the city to get the lowest prices.

Work will be started soon on the following streets: Ashland place, Beckwith street, Lakeview avenue, Linwood avenue, South Prado and Woodson street. This will approximate 12,000 yards of paving, and it will take about three months to complete the work.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON SLATER BILL

A favorable report was formulated Thursday afternoon by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives upon the resolution introduced Thursday by Representative Slater of Bryan, authorizing the governor to borrow $500,000 with which to pay the school teachers their overdue salaries. The resolution has yet to be passed by the house and concurred in by the senate.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Representative J. O. Adams Being Urged to Run for Congress in Ninth.

During the past few days a large number of the voters of the Ninth congressional district have, both in person and by letter, urged Representative J. O. Adams, of Hall county, to run for congress next year to succeed Congressman Thomas M. Bell.

Mr. Adams has promised his friends to give due consideration to their suggestion. However, he has assured them in advance that if his friend, W. A. Charters, of Gainesville, runs again, he will not himself announce, but will support Mr. Charters with all his influence.

Mr. Adams has, it is said, planned to run for the state senate in the Thirty-third district next year. Whether he will change his plans and become a congressional candidate can not be predicted, for he declines to discuss the subject at this time.

For four years Mr. Adams has been one of the most progressive and influential members of the house. He is now serving his fifth year as representative from Hall county, and he is one of the leading lawyers at Gainesville.

Judge Kimsey May Oppose Judge Jones in Next Primary.

Judge J. J. Kimsey, of Cornelia, has just paid a visit to Atlanta to meet his friends in the general assembly. While he was here it was rumored that he would very probably be a candidate to succeed Judge J. B. Jones as judge of the northeastern circuit.

Judge Kimsey formerly presided over this circuit, in which he has a large following. He has made no definite announcement as to his intentions, but it is believed that he will again seek the office. Judge Jones will, it is said, most probably be a candidate for re-election.

Berry Spoke Against Bill But Later He Voted in Favor of It.

One of the most courtly members of the Georgia legislature, and one who possesses to a marked degree the manners of the traditional southern gentleman, is Representative S. E. Berry, of Whitfield. Unlike the average modern statesman, he always gives due and kindly consideration to the opinions of others.

The characteristically fair attitude of Mr. Berry was illustrated Wednesday when the bill providing for the removal of the county seat of Murray county from Springplace to Chatsworth came up for passage in the house.

Though admittedly unwell and scarcely able to speak, Mr. Berry arose in his seat and made a beautiful sentimental plea against it. He referred to the historic traditions surrounding Springplace, which he said had been the former home of some of the great Indian chieftains in the pathway of the discoverer, DeSoto, and which is said to have been the place where that immortal song, "Home, Sweet Home," was composed by John Howard Payne.

As the speaker yielded the floor, Representative Anderson, of Murray, seemingly somewhat perturbed at Mr. Berry's remarks, declared that he, and not the gentleman from Whitfield, had been sent to the legislature to represent Murray county.

Replying, Mr. Berry said that he had no intention whatever of stirring up a hornets' nest, but merely desired to express his personal feelings in the matter.

A few moments later when the roll was called Mr. Berry, explaining his vote, arose and said:

"It appears that the removal of the court house to Chatsworth is the expressed will and desire of both the people of Murray and the members of the house. I, therefore, yield to the will of the majority and wish to be recorded as voting aye."

The vote in favor of the removal was 154 to 9.

Minority Favors Biennial Sessions of Legislature.

When the committee on general judiciary of the state senate reported unfavorably the bill which provides for biennial sessions of the general assembly there was a minority report filed, signed by four members, Senators Allen, Oliff, Turner and Spinks.

The report gave several reasons why it was believed a biennial session was best. That there was enough law on the statute books of Georgia already; that the annual session disorganized business; that eternal amending of laws kept the public in a constant state of unrest as to what the law really was; that annual sessions were too expensive, and that elections came too frequently, were some of the reasons advanced by the minority.

Barrow County Has Been Defeated But Its Friends Are in Rovire Discharged.

One can but admire the pluck and perseverance of those who advocate the creation of the new county of Barrow. Undaunted by the defeat of the creating bill in the senate Thursday, they smilingly announce that they will be back for another "try" next summer.

At each session of the legislature for the past seven years they have put up a game fight. The bill has always managed to get through one house only to be killed in the other. When it has been favored by the senate the house of representatives has adversed it and when it has met the approval of the house the senate has headed it off.

But, as stated above, the friends of the movement have never lost heart. They take their "bumps" with a philosophical cheerfulness, and immediately upon the heels of defeat they set about organizing a new campaign.

The Barrow county bill brought forth a larger flow of oratory in the state senate Thursday than has been there this session.

Seventeen of the forty-three senators on the floor took some part in the discussion, either during the main debate or in the five minutes allowed each member of the senate to explain his vote.

Judge Allen Favors Ballots for Women.

How does the question of woman suffrage stand in the state senate? For two seconds it was up again on Thursday during the Barrow county bill debate.

Senator John T. Allen, in belittling the arguments advanced by the opponents of the bill, declared that the speech of one senator made him wish they had woman suffrage in that man's county.

Senator McGregor, sitting near Judge Allen, murmured that he'd better look out or they would have it in his own county.

"Let it come!" cried Judge Allen. "I'm sure I don't care. Let 'er come!"

Speeches on Barrow Bill Taken by Stenographers.

That Senator C. E. McGregor, of the Nineteenth, intends to make a hot fight in favor of his bill which would leave the creation of counties in the future to the vote of the citizens in the affected districts, was proven by his action in installing two court stenographers in the senate during the discussion on the Barrow county measure.

These stenographers took down the entire speeches of both sides. Senator McGregor declares that he wants to have these for reference when his bill comes up for passage, as it will probably do as soon as the committee has worked on it a bit.

Senator McGregor was instrumental in having the Barrow county bill killed in the senate. He made a strong speech, in the course of which he declared that he was opposed to no new counties if the people were allowed to pass on their creation.

Are Ellijay's Street Paved With Fine Marble or Just Old Rocks?

Are the streets of Ellijay, Ga., paved with marble or rock? This was one of the interesting little items of discussion which came up in the senate during the debate on Barrow county. Senator Burtz, leading the fight against the measure, had declared that the county creators were trying to cut off a bit of his own county, Gilmer, which, he said, was one of the smallest and poorest in the state.

Senator Allen interrupted him by asking if it were not true that the streets of Ellijay were paved with marble, wonderful, costly marble, the like of which no other city in the state could boast. Senator Burtz appeared to be rather aggrieved in his reply, declaring that there wasn't any marble on the streets, but just some old rock the natives had dug up there in the Gilmer hills.

ATLANTA POSTOFFICE TO RECEIVE "DEAD" PARCELS

They Will Be Kept for Year, and If Still Unclaimed, Then Will Be Sold

An order from Washington just received here makes the Atlanta postoffice the dead letter office for parcel post mail undelivered in the states of Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee, instead of Washington, as heretofore.

Unclaimed matter will be kept here a year and if still unclaimed will be sold at auction.

Inspector Barry, who with other officials, has been investigating the parcel post business, says that when the new twenty-pound rule becomes effective July 15 the office here will require at least 1,000 additional square feet of space.

DR. JACOBS NOT BUYER OF BURNS MANUSCRIPTS

At Least His Son Thinks So, "Biggest Joke I Ever Heard," He Declares

"I think it's the biggest joke I ever heard," declared Sinclair S. Jacobs, vice president of Jacobs' Pharmacy, when asked Friday morning to confirm the report that his father, Dr. Joe Jacobs, president of the pharmacy, is the purchaser of the Glenriddell manuscripts of Bobbie Burns, the Scotch poet.

"I know that Dr. Jacobs hasn't been within a good many hnudred miles of London on this trip," said he. He added that Dr. Jacobs, now in Europe on his wedding trip, went first to Amsterdam and then to Carlsbad. The doctor is in Carlsbad now, said his son.

Mr. Jacobs admitted, however, that he had no other ground than his own opinion for surmising that the report is untrue. He had not heard directly about it from his father, he said.

News that the manuscripts had passed from the possession of the Liverpool Athenaeum to the hands of a London dealer, and that the dealer was reported to have acted as agent for an unknown American, was published in The Journal Thursday. Later came dispatches from New York declaring that Dr. Joe Jacobs, of Atlanta, is the mysterious purchaser.

These are the same manuscripts for which in 1902 the Athenaeum refused an offer of $25,000 from J. P. Morgan. The price that Dr. Jacobs is said to have paid is in excess of that, the definite figures not being given.

Friends of Dr. Jacobs in Atlanta, and particularly those associated with him in the Burns club (of which he is a pioneer member), were disposed to accept the report of the purchase by him as true. Their credence is founded on their knowledge of his intense admiration of the Scotch poet's writings. The Robert Burns cottage, home of the club, in the woods south of Atlanta, is the only replica anywhere in the world of the original Burns cottage and stands unique among memorials to the poet. Dr. Jacobs more than any one else helped to make its construction a reality. His personal collection of Burns literature and relics, stored in the library of his home on Peachtree, is said to pe the finest in the United States.

The Glenriddell manuscripts are so designated because they form the collection which Burns presented to Robert Riddell, of Glenriddell, in acknowledgment of hospitality which the poet had received from Mr. Riddell. The collection passed eventually into the possession of Dr. Currie, of Liverpool, whose heirs presented it unconditionally to the Liverpool Athenaeum.

John M. Graham, the lawyer, is one of numerous Atlantians of the Burns club membership who are interested deeply in the news of the purchase.

"If Dr. Jacobs did buy the Glenriddell collection," said Mr. Graham Friday, "it is not probable that he would store it elsewhere than in his own home. It would be far too precious to risk in the lonely little club house."

Mr. Graham commented upon the contrast in the poet's work long after his death and its worth to him while he lived.

"Here is one collection of the manuscripts selling for $25,000 or more," said Mr. Graham. "Yet the poet's writings netted him approximately $8,000 altogether—that, and no more."

Measure Against Card Playing on Sabbath Offered

If Senator W. E. H. Searcy, of the Twenty-sixth, had his way, there would be no card playing in Georgia on Sundays.

He offered a bill for the first reading Friday which prohibits the playing of games in which cards or dice are used on the Sabbath. The senator says that his measure is aimed not only at gambling, but at any kind of card playing on Sunday.

To date he has succeeded in getting one bill passed, in an amended form, which prohibits the shipment of liquor into Georgai for illegal purposes. But his bills requiring the Bible to be read in the public schools and against the intermediaries in blind tiger sales have both been killed.

WANT WALTER ANDREWS AS CONSUL TO FRANCE

House Passes Resolution Recommending Atlantian to Wilson

The house of representatives Friday morning unanimously passed a resolution requesting President Woodrow Wilson to appoint Colonel Walter P. Andrews consul general to France. The resolution was adopted without any debate and showed that all members of the olwer house wish to see the Atlantian honored.

The resolution originally drawn by D. B. Bullard, of Campbell, is seconded by ten other members of the house whose names appear under the caption with those of the author.

The text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas, we recognize the Hon. Walter P. Andrews, a citizen of Fulton county, Georgia, as a man especially adapted and pre-eminently fitted for the post of consul general of the United States to Paris, France, and

"Whereas, we believe his appointment to said position would give unqualified pleasure and practically unanimous satisfaction to the people of Georgia, and

"Whereas, we believe that his services in that capacity would be of the highest importance and benefit to the country at large; therefore be it

"Resolved by the house, the senate concurring, That the said Hon. Walter P. Andrews is hereby most heartily indorsed for said position and we most respectfully request the president of the United States to appoint him to said position of consul general to Paris."

Those introducing the resolution were Messrs. Bullard of Campbell, Hardeman of Jefferson, Leibetter of Polk, Ragland of Talbot, Wohlwender of Muscogee, Rhodes of Clarke, Wheatley of Sumter, Stovall of Elbert, Cochran of Fulton, Blackburn of Fulton, Smith of Fulton, and Wisdom of Forsyth.

The resolution was sent immediately to the senate for concurrence.

Colonel Andrews was one of the original Wilson men in Georgia and workes enthusiastically for his nomination and for his election after nomination.

ANOTHER IMPLICATED IN BURGLARY ON HUNTER ST.

H. B. Williams Said to Have Confessed That He Helped Miller and Reeves

H. B. Williams, a weaver, who is said to have made a full confession to the police that with T. W. Reeves and R. W. Miller he attempted the burglary of Byfield's grocery store on West Hunter street, will be arraigned before Recorder Broyles Friday afternoon with George Harris, another prisoner held by the police as a member of the marauding gang which Reeves and Miller are said to have directed.

Miller and Reeves were heard before the recorder Thursday afternoon and were bound over to the higher courts in several cases of alleged burglary and robbery, under heavy bond.

Williams and Harris, alleged accomplices, were not tried then.

Harris is an autuomobile truck driver, and has been employed by Kelly Brothers, wholesale grocers, whose place of business on Peters street was burglarized about a month ago. The police suspect him of complicity in that burglary.

Mrs. Ruby McGinty, of 153 1-2 Whitehall street, wife of a sawmill superintendent who is now in some other state at work, complained to the police Thursday that she gave $58 to Reeves to be deposited in the bank in her name, and that she had not heard of it since. She wanted the police to recover it.

PROFIT-TAKING BY BEARS CHECKED BREAK IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 2 Points Up to 6 Points Off From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 25—As today's weather map and private advices tended to confirm rumors about more rains in the western belt, including Texas, cotton opened barely steady with prices 1 to 11 points lower.

With a low barometer over Arkansas and the west, further rains were expected but as the market was considerably oversold, a larger covering movement advanced prices 3 to 5 points above the opening level.

The market continued steady on trade buying and a demand for August from Liverpool interests, but turned weak again towards noon on the official forecast of further showers in the Texas west and detailed reports of rain, resulting bark to about opening levels.

A better tone developed in the early afternoon. New crops recovered about all the early loss on the forecast, but generally confirmed a belief that Texas rains had been insufficient.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 25—Cotton futures opened steady 2 points down to 4 points up. Cables were about as due but the weather map showed rains over the larger part of the belt. Then extending into Texas, which prompted some little selling. In the early trading prices were 4 points under yesterday's close, but this was the case of the showers for all parts of the belt except west Texas. Buying increased on the decline, apparently being for both accounts, and at the end of the first hour of business prices were unchanged to 1 point down compared with yesterday's closing figures on the new crops and 8 up on August.

The market fell off again around the middle of the morning on selling for short account, encouraged by the gentlemen from a number of points in Texas stating that the showers of yesterday and last night had greatly improved the outlook. Bulls quickly rallied, however, that only a small part of Texas has experienced rain. At the lowest the trading months were 4 to 8 points under yesterday's final figures. Selling pressure was not long continued and at noon the market was quiet and steady, 9 to 4 points under yesterday's close.

NEW YORK, July 25.—New high records were established in cotton seed oil this morning. Old crop months were bulled up on the scarcity of real oil and a continued demand from consumers and makers. HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Official records and private advices submitted to us this morning from North Texas and Oklahoma and the map shows a fair rainfall during the past week in central and eastern states; cooler in north Texas and Oklahoma and warmer in the west and continued showery weather in the central states and Mississippi valley, clearing in the Atlantics. Since the date of Habersham King's report, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia have had a fine rain and the local observers states are getting it now.

Prices came in about 12 points lower than due; spots 3 points lower; sales 10,000. Our market opened a fairly steady basis and sold around 11.31 for October. It is being generally said that rains in the west came too late to improve harvest returns, which should be true, and is therefore, are that the August bureau, which will be published a week from today, will show several points loss and this explains the absence of selling pressure in the market and a disposition to buy on depressions.

Political news is unfavorable. According to London news a revolution is China is again under way.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says:

While general showers were reported, either of rain or thunder, in practically all sections of the belt, with the exception of west Texas and the Panhandle country, the extent of new crop cotton seemed willing to hold steady, and reluctantly declined only when the remnant old stock bellwethers unaffected, such as July and August, of course, a thing of the past, except in so far as forward months trailers are concerned. August, however, while a very live wire at the opening, apparently was not contented to develop any very great voltage, because the outstanding interest in that month is not supposed to be large. During the past few days it has been whispered about that the least desirable portion of the July contract would be transferred and be retendered on August. Yesterday morning August positions were offered freely immediately before the close those friends deserted it. Thus the talent does not know what to expect during the final hour of trading, the 1912-13 crop. On the face of things, room traders cannot figure out a profit, as the dullness in the cotton on August at current differences. August closed at 11.62, or 6 points net, which does not relive, making 11.75 for basis middling, f. o. b. New Orleans. Low middling (government grade) ends is 43 points below and this week reduces the August price to 11.32 for low middling (government grade), f. o. b. New Orleans.

Map shows part cloudy to cloudy in belt; nice rains in north Texas, Oklahoma and central and eastern belt. Cooler in Texas Panhandle and more rain and thunderstorms coming on Texas, Oklahoma; also west Texas. Continued showers and cooler weather clearing Atlantics.—Kofler.

Quite a few advices circulating this morning but out by Liverpool houses.

Forecast:

Louisiana: Unsettled showers and thunderstorms tonight or Saturday; light southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Unsettled, showers and thunderstorms tonight or Saturday.

Oklahoma: Unsettled and Saturday unsettled, showers in east portion tonight or Saturday.

East Texas: Unsettled, local showers unsettled, showers in north portion tonight or Saturday.

Light southerly winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Saturday generally fair.

Georgia and Alabama: Local showers tonight and Saturday.

Southeastern: Warmer tonight and Saturday.

Tennessee and Mississippi: Local showers tonight or Saturday.

10 a. m., bids in New York were as follows: January, 11.13; July, 11.78; August, 11.64; October, 11.23.

10 a. m., bids in New Orleans were, January, 11.30; August, 11.64; October, 11.23.

Hentz, Seidenberg and Liverpool brokers hedging July but see no change.

Habersham King's latest report says: The dividing line is the Mississippi river. West of the river the crop is fairly safe, though rains are needed in the west half of Mississippi and Alabama and more moisture needed in Georgia to make a full crop. East of the river developments have been unfavorable to 50 per cent of belt.

Memphis, Tenn.: Rains have given partial relief in Texas and elsewhere the precipitation has been light. Cotton is shedding and few buyers and the market shows weak undertone. Talent expects 13c cotton in the fall and on further decline, sentiment will become more bearish as prices approach 11 cents. The crop is more than assured than at any previous time and nothing has appeared to trade attention to other crops to make a full crop. Our bureau makes condition of crop 81.9 against 76.3 last year.—Carey Hale & Cotter.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow Jones' summary: Government brings suit against American Telephone and Telegraph company to dissolve its connection with North western Long Distance Telephone company, and other former independents, Attorney Gilpatric is retained by the president of the New Haven road. Mediation with Mexico will be suggested by Bryan. Congressional approval is pledged. Bryan may be sent as a mediator. Railroads make stand against Sherman law. Government brings suit against Boston & Maine, Consolidated Railroad, Consolidated Coal and Consolidated Railroad. Steel corporation earnings are estimated at $1 a share. Twenty active rails advanced .55.

Believe the advance will continue for some time with the usual exacting that come from time to time in every bull market. Would buy good dividend paying issues, especially stocks like Union Pacific, Reading, Copper and Steel shares.

In keeping with its recent course today's market showed considerable early irregularity, leading and selling short, while lower specialties and minor shares were up to 3 points.

Before the market opened it appeared strong. New Haven rising almost 4 points, with best prices after the directors' statement in Steel Amalgamated and Union Pacific.

Government bonds irregular.

Earnings of Union Pacific for June, net $2,950,044; increase $590,264. Twelve months net, $34,941,066; increase $3,722,852.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter-Ocean says: It is the general belief of the wheat trade that constant export buying will be necessary to maintain the present level of prices until sufficient of the crops has been harvested and threshed to make its influence felt as a bullish factor. It is the gossip of the corn trade that conditions in the corn market will be reversed of those prevailing last winter. Then the crowd was all bearish and selling short, while the commercial Grain company was bullish and took hold of the market; today the crowd is bullish and in a speculative position, and made a good advance. Armour Grain company is understood to be bearish and selling freely. Local crowd for several days, while the local crowd is bullish and is buying all it can get. The Armour interest have Oats specialists said last night that 95 per cent of the local crowd was short of oats.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Northwestern conditions are favorable and generally good for weather and seasonable temperatures. Do not look for any particular action in market today.

Corn: Has shown a few light scattered showers in Kansas and Nebraska, but not enough to do any damage in any of country offerings.

Oats: Market seems to be quieting down, although trade being small, there is no pressure in the way of country offerings.

Provisions: Trade being small, buying by September lard and foreigners are also on that side of the market.

Liberal receipts of hogs.

Illinois—Probably showers late tonight or Saturday; warmer.

Indiana—Fair tonight; Saturday cloudy, with showers by night.

Missouri, Wisconsin, Iowa and Kansas—Probably showers tonight or Saturday; warmer.

Dakotas—Fair; warmer.

Nebraska—Fair in west; probably showers in east tonight o rSaturday; warmer.

Michigan—Fair tonight; showers Saturday; warmer.

Minnesota City says: The Daily Drovers Telegram, of Sioux City, publishes a report based on reports of crop reviews from every county in Kansas, making total wheat crop of that state 72,572,000, or a fraction nor ethan twelve million bushels more than the government condition before recent rains of 39.5 per cent, which is 37.6 per cent less than average third; 72.5 for central, and 25.3 for western third.

Snow closed from Minot, N. D., West through central and northwestern counties of that state, with generally fair conditions in Minnesota and Dakotas. Some drouth is apparent only in short straw. If the drouth had stayed had been good in North Dakota, they would have escaped another like the present one continues perfect. In spite of a bad start, will get an average yield of one to three bushels.

Lyle wires from Wollingrow, Kas.: Newton to Wellington corn near a failure. Wax in ground during heated term, driest part of the state. Wheat good and prospects fine for state. Good local rain here, but too late for corn.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, July 25.—Men showed some scattered rains in western belt this morning which gave the market a firmer tone. Commission houses and the local crowd the south is said to have been selling. Spot houses were apparently seemed to be in summer positions. Liverpool was said to have bought August early. After Liverpool closed there was another wave of selling, and in the absence of that buying power the market sagged off again but rallied later in the day on some 15,000 bales private crop state to come from spot people. This caused another covering wave. Reports as Texas rainfall is conflicting. Should rains be general it is believed that the market will sell lower, though some bulls say that a 12c cotton is assured, that cotton is worth the present price. It is purely a weather market.—Anderson.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Morris H. Rothschild & Co.: Shorts are more confident of their position.

A. Neidich & Co.: We favor conservative purchases on weather like that of yesterday.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: With a supply of consumers which will be for sale on any rally sentiment will be more bearish.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

General Electric, Cotton Oil and Rock Island Up—Canadian Pacific Is Off

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 25.—Irregularity again characterized opening dealings in stocks today. Canadian Pacific and National Railways of Mexico first preferred, were off a point with Reading, Union Pacific, Steel, Rock Island, Erie and Steel. New Haven opened a substantial fractional advance, soon gaining a full point. Amalgamated copper, Colorado Fuel and the Rock Island issues also displayed some firmness.

Except for partial recovery in the more prominent issues and gains of 1 to 2 points in some specialties, no change of note occurre din the first hour.

Hazriman stocks figured conspicuously in the later rise, the excellent June earnings of Union Pacific influencing increased buying of that stock. In other quarters the advance also was significant. Copper, Steel and Coalers ruling materially over yesterday's closing figures.

Bonds were irregular. Offers of easier feeling respecting money and investment conditions. Dullness characterized all classes of stocks. Additional gains of 1 point were made in a few active list, while specialties were up 1 to 5 points.

Traders took profits liberally and cancelled a part of their recent purchases. Heavy selling of Canadian Pacific depressed it 2 points.

Closed irregular.

APPROPRIATIONS BILL OPPOSED BY ONLY TWO

Passes House With Few Changes—Clarke Blames Deficit on Prohibition

The general appropriations measure was passed by the house of representatives Friday morning by a vote of 144 to 2. The two members who voted against it were Messrs. McGehee, of Meriwether, and Wright, of Floyd.

The remaining sections of the general appropriations bill were read by the house, sitting as a committee of the whole, Friday morning, and were passed without material change. The committee was just about to rise and report the entire bill with the recommendation that it do pass when Representative Wright, of Floyd, moved reconsideration of sections 4 and 5. Those sections granted increases to the state university, the state sanitarium and other state institutions. Mr. Wright contended that the appropriations there should have been based upon the appropriations of 1909.

In the debate that followed, upon whether reconsideration should be taken, Mr. Fullbright, of Burke, asserted that in the past few years the revenues of the state have been cut $500,000, while the needs have increased $750,000.

"What's the trouble?" asked Mr. Clarke, of Dougherty.

"Too much appropriation," said Mr. Fullbright.

"Not so," said Mr. Clarke. "You passed a prohibition law and cut the revenues."

Later, when Mr. Akin, of Glynn, was speaking, Mr. Clarke arose with a similar question.

"Repeal your prohibition law and you'll have plenty of money for everything," he asserted as he sat dawn.

HIS STAND APPROVED.

Demonstrations of approval came from the Bibb and Chatham county delegations. Mr. Slade, of Muscogee, the oldest member of the house, walked over and patted Mr. Clarke on the back.

The house declined to reconsider section 4.

The house refused also to reconsider section 5, and the committee resolved itself again into the house of representatives and proceeded to act upon the bill.

By clerical error, $3,679,000 appropriated for the refunding of bonds next year was omitted from the writing of the bill until the last moment.

WOULD BORROW $500,000.

At its regular meting Thursday afternoon, the ways and means committee of the house unanimously recommended for passage the resolution introduced by Representative W. F. Slater, of Bryan, authorizing the governor to borrow $500,000 for the purpose of paying the back salaries of the school teachers of Georgia.

This marks the first definite step toward the accomplishment of this purpose and is in accordance with a decision rendered Governor John M. Slaton by Attorney General Thomas S. Felder, in which he construed the recent constitutional amendment to mean that the state could borrow more than half a million dollars with which to meet certain deficits occasioned by the temporary delay in the collection of the state's revenues.

This action of the committee follows closely upon the amendment voted to the general appropriations bill Thursday increasing the school appropriation for the years 1914 and 1915 from $2,-000,000 to $2,600,000, an increase of $50,000 for each year.

It is generally believed that the action of the committee will be met with favor in both houses.

While the committee killed all bills favoring a special tax on soft drinks and declined to increase the near beer tax it was active in the recommendation for passage of certain measures amendatory to the general tax act.

WOULD TAX LOBBYISTS.

Among the bills that went to the house Friday morning favorably reported by the ways and means committee was one that would impose a yearly tax of $50 on registered lobbyists. Another seeks to double the occupation tax on foreign and domestic corporations making the range from $10 to $200 instead of from $5 to $100 as the law now stands.

Other measures approved were as follows:

A tax of $25 per head on automatic bottling plants, $75 for two heads, $125 for three heads and $50 on each additional head in excess of three.

To empower the comptroller general to appoint tax agents in any county.

To raise the registration tax on automobiles to $5 flat with the provision that licenses be taken out annually instead of for the life of the machine, as is the case at present.

The present license tax on all automobiles is $2 each and so long as the same machine is used by the holder no new number is required from year to year. The new bill would not only increase the tax $3, but provides also that a new tax must be taken out every year. During last year, according to the report of Secretary of State Philip Cook, over 20,000 license numbers were taken out, which would have meant a revenue to the state of over $100,000. With every car in the state registering annually the income from this source, should the measure become a law, would help, in a large measure, to make up for the present big deficiency in the treasury.

NE W COUNTY PROPOSALS.

The committee on amendments to the constitution heard two new county propositions and reported favorably on one. Hansell county, with Pelham as the county site, went to the house recommended for passage. Lamar county failed for the third time to win out before the committee and was killed.

It is proposed to form Hansell county from parts of Grady, Thomas and Mitchell counties.

A delegation from the executive committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement appeared before the appropriations committee in an effort to secure $75,000 for the proposed Industrial Home for Girls. This bill has the sanction of the penitentiary committee and after being favorably reported there was recommitted to the appropriations committee in order to secure the necessary amount.

In executive session the committee referred the bill to a subcommittee of three to report back at the next meeting. There is every indication that the measure will receive the approval of both committees, though it is doubtful whether the full appropriation asked will be granted. Between $25,000 and $50,000 is expected.

PARCEL POST STAND OF BURLESON IS APPROVED

Tells Senate Committee Convincing Facts—Sustained by Senator Hoke Smith

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Postmaster General Burleson appeared before the senate postoffice committe this morning and sustained his authority to reduce the parcel-post rates for rural routes and short distances. Certain members of the committee questioned not only his authority but the wisdom of the new rates promulgated by him, and he was requested to appear in defense of his position. He came out of the hearing with flying colors, and it may be safely predicted that any attempt to interfere with the reduction in rates is doomed to failure.

The postmaster general's order permits the carriage of packages up to 20 pounds over rural routes and for distances not exceeding 150 miles and reduces the rural route rates on eleven-pound packages to 10 cents. The reduction on lighter packages is in the same relative proportion. The rate for 20-pound packages on rural routes is fixed at 15 cents and a maximum rate of 24 cents is prescribed for packages weighing twenty pounds carried 150 miles.

Senator Hoke Smith, a member of the postoffice committee, has from the first sided with the postmaster general in his parcel-post reform. After the hearing today the senator said:

"I think the order is entirely within the authority given him by the act adopted by the last congress, and that it will greatly facilitate the use of the parcel post and lessen the cost on the people from one-third to one-half.

"When the existing rates were adopted by the last congress, I sought at that time to persuade the postoffice committee to make them less for the short distances. Rates now adopted by the postmaster general are approximately those for which I contended a year ago.

"I believe a majority of the postfice committee of the senate will sustain the postmaster general, but whether they do or not the law authorizes him to act, and that law must be repeated before his order can be interfered with.

"I shall support the postmaster general in his action and shall resist any attempt to prevent the reduction from becoming operative. I would not object to amending the law so as to amend the rates for long distances, as I do not think they are more than sufficient to pay the expenses of the government."

DECATUR PROTESTS RAILWAY'S PETITION

The board of trade and business men generally of Decatur are said to be opposing the petition of the Georgia Railway and Power company for permission from the state railroad commission to discontinue its freight and express service on the north Decatur line and transfer it to the South Decatur line.

A petition, asking for such authority, has been filed with the commission by the street car company and the date for a hearing on it has been set for September 3. The street car company not only desires to run its freight and express cars to Decatur over the southern route, but it also wishes to build its Decatur depot near its sub-station, on College street, opposite the Georgia railroad station.

The board of trade and the merchants are opposed to changing the depot from uptown, where it now is, to the new site, which is some distance from the business district.

SOUTH GEORGIA HORSES INFECTED BY GLANDERS

Disease in Four Counties, Deadly to Humans as Well as to Animals

Glanders, an incurable and very contagious disease, has made its appearance among the horses in four south Georgia counties—Montgomery, Wheeler, Telfair and Appling—and Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, the state veterinarian, will leave Atlanta Friday night for Scotland, Telfair county, to begin what he terms a "clean-up" campaign. He says he will continue on the job until every infected animal in the state has been located and put out o fthe way.

According to Dr. Bahnsen glanders is a disease which cannot be cured. This disease, says the state veterinarian, is communicable to human beings and is as deadly to them as it is to horses and mules.

It was brought into south Georgia, he says, in 1909, in a carload of horses from Texas. At that time Dr. Bahnsen and his assistants located most of the diseased animals and they were killed, but some of them were hidden by their owners and from time to time since the disease has shown up in vartous localities.

Bill Arp's Desk

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., July 25.—A local furniture dealer has just reconstructed and has on display the writing desk used by the late Major Charles H. Smith, known throughout Georgia by his pen name of Bill Arp. The desk is probably the oldest piece of furniture in Rome, and was brought here by Major Smith's father, Asell R. Smith, a Rome pioneer, in 1833. It remained in the possession of the Smith family until 1886, when, after it had passed through the flood here, it was given to an old servant and former slave of the family, Jerry Smith, as he kept it until recently, when he turned it over to the furniture dealer. The relic is creating much interest among antiquarians.

W. & A. COMMITTEE BLOCKS HOUSE MEASURE

The W. and A. committee of the state senate is actively considering the problem of what to do with this road. The committee met Friday morning and reported unfavorably to the senate the house resolution providing a committee to consider the purchase of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic road by the state, to be operated as a part of the W. and A.

A joint resolution of Senators Longino and Sweat was referred to a subcommittee which will report back to the main committee early next week. This resolution provides that the assembly appoint a commission to investigate the extension of the road to the sea and its re-lease by the state if so extended.

The Gillespies expect to have the times of their lives on the trip, which will last about three months. San Francisco is to be their future home.

Until recently Mr. Gillespie was proprietor of the Good Eats lunch room on Luckie street, and resided at East Lake Junction.

Speed the Vital Statistics Bill to Prompt Passage.

The bill providing an appropriation of five thousand dollars for the establishment of a State bureau of vital statistics is now before the House committee on hygiene and sanitation. If promptly and favorably reported, it will doubtless become a law at the present session of the Legislature, thus solving one of the most urgent and far-reaching problems with which the people of Georgia are confronted. It is especially important, therefore, that the committee do its part in speeding this useful measure on the way to passage.

It is scarcely necessary to remind any thoughtful group of men, either in the Legislature or among citizens at large, of the supreme need and value of a system of vital statistics in conserving the interests of public health. All informed persons, whether physicians or laymen, know that without an adequate and dependable record of births, deaths and the causes of deaths, little or no progress can be made in campaigns against disease. If the funds now appropriated to the State Board of Health and those appropriated to kindred agencies by individual cities and counties are to yield a due return, there must be a system of vital statistics in the light of which they may be intelligently and efficiently spent. It is thus to the interest of every citizen and every home, of every county and town, especially those of rural districts, that the vital statistics bill be passed.

There is still another consideration which demands the prompt enactment of this measure. It is this: Georgia now has virtually no place or mention in the health reports compiled and issued by the federal census bureau. The census bureau collects such statistics from only those States in which there is a satisfactory system for the registration of vital statistics; and necessarily so. The only available records of this kind in Georgia are from the cities of Savannah and Atlanta. Thus it is that in those reports of the United States which deal with health records and conditions and which are read as authoritative throughout the nation and throughout the world Georgia is now conspicuous by her utter absence.

The result of this is inevitably damaging to the State's reputation and to its material progress, for, among the first questions asked by a prospective home seeker or investor is a question of health and sanitation. No man wants to live in a community whose health conditions are doubtful or unknown and few men will risk an investment there. How then can Georgia expect to get her due share of the thrifty settlers and the millions of capital that are trending Southward, when she has no official standing whatsoever in the government health records to which people everywhere turn for guidance and information? Georgians know that they have a naturally healthful State but the important thing is that the world shall know this.

Hence from the standpoint of economic interests as well as health interests, it is imperative that a State bureau of vital statistics be established with the least possible delay. A bill to this end has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Elkins and in the House by Representative Allen, of Jackson. It is a model bill, meeting the requirements of the census bureau and the government health authorities. It calls for an appropriation of only five thousand dollars, an amount really trivial compared with the far-reaching service and value it will render.

This bill will place Georgia on the health map of the nation. It will lead eventually to the saving of thousands of thousands of lives and incalculable stores of potential wealth. It is a bill in the interest of economy, of progress, of humanity—one of the most important bills, indeed, that has ever been before the Legislature.

The committee on hygiene and sanitation should do everything within its power to expedite the passage of this vital measure.

Interurban Trolley Lines.

The Chamber of Commerce did well to create some months ago a special committee on interurban railways. Atlanta's future growth depends largely on the development of her outlying territory and there are few surer means to that end than the establishment of well-considered trolley lines. The city's present connections with Decatur, College Park, Marietta and other thriving towns are an invaluable asset not only to Atlanta and to each of these terminal points but also to the intervening country.

The time is soon coming, if, indeed, it is not at hand when additional lines and longer lines can be profitably operated. The city should be prepared to encourage such enterprises, for, if they are undertaken with foresight and are carried to successful completion, they will prove vital factors in municipal progress. In this connection the Chamber of Commerce committee can render substantial service; in fact, it is already doing so. It is gathering statistics concerning interurban railways in Indiana and other middle-western States. The information thus secured will be very helpful as a basis of considerations and plans for projects of the same kind in this part of Georgia.

The committee is particularly interested just now in the proposed construction of an interurban electric line from Anderson, S. C., to Atlanta. This enterprise is said to have the support of large and substantial interests. If it can be consummated, it will be a distinctive advantage to Atlanta and to all the territory traversed. Certainly, it merits the investigation the committee is giving it.

Such lines, besides quickening and extending the commerce of the towns and cities they connect, add greatly to the value of farm lands. They promote agricultural progress, that basic element in the upbuilding of Southern communities. They open new lines of trade and afford new outlets for the products of the soil. Within the next few decades, we shall hear much of interurban lines in the South. Atlanta does well to take the lead in this fruitful field of development.

The Recrudescence of the Turk.

The re-investment of Adrianople by the Turks precipitates the gravest issue that European diplomacy has yet faced in the Balkan conflict. If the boundary lines agreed upon at the London conference after long and delicate negotiations are to be wiped out, the Powers will find themselves again entangled in all the differences that vexed them before that conference and at the same time they will be burdened with the divers new problems which the war among the Allies has developed. The Turkish situation was difficult enough within itself; if it revived and still further complicated at this juncture, it will become indeed perilous.

There is reason to suspect, however, that Turkey entertains no serious hopes of holding the territory which she has re-occupied. To do so would be open defiance of the mandate of concerted Europe. Her ultimate purpose in marching back across the land which has been allotted to Bulgaria and in seizing its chief stronghold is, as one observer describes it, "a try in diplomacy rather than in war." By this *move, Turkey counts upon making a better territo*rial bargain, after Bulgaria's strength has been broken, than she was able to drive at the London conference. Though she may not be permitted to retain Adrianople, her possession of that city will lend color to her claims for more land than she has heretofore been allowed.

Upon the ability of the larger Powers to reach an agreement as to the policy they shall follow in this regard, depends very largely their future peace. It has been suggested that Russia be empowered to force Turkey to an observance of the original terms of her peace treaty. If Austria concurs in such a plan it will be quietly and speedily effected; if not, then the bars to a widespread w... will be down.

A Plea Worth Heeding.

The Journal takes pleasure in reproducing elsewhere on this page a particularly virile and convincing editorial from Editor Thomas W. Loyless, of the Augusta Chronicle, on the injustice and inhumanity of the Georgia law which gives a mother not even a secondary right to the custody of her children except in cases where the father is dead or in very unusual circumstances.

Mr. Loyless presents the issue with such cogency that it is not now necessary to comment further than to say that every member of the Legislature should read and ponder this seasonable editorial.

THE NEW RURAL SCHOOL

IV.—A STUDY OF CORN.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Conservative, full-grown farmers who have sneered at book farmers have been taught by the Boys' Corn clubs that it pays to mix a little knowledge in with the dirt when growing corn—that it increases the yield for one acre from, say, twenty bushels to two hundred and twenty. Now, even the most conservative farmer, even one whose conservatism is so grounded in kindred ignorance that he is unable to read and write, does know how to add and subtract. He does know the difference between twenty bushels and forty bushels and eighty bushels of corn to the acre. It has long been held to be desirable to teach farmers' children how to "read and write and cipher," why not also teach them how to grow corn? And why not do it at the same time they are learning these other things?

* * *

In the three preceding articles on the experimental rural school at Rock Hill, S. C., it has been shown how reading and writing and numbers are taught as an incident to practical everyday affairs, playing and gardening and cooking. To show how well done is the main work, the gardening, the teaching of the science of agriculture, it is better to take a single plant—corn—and see what the new rural school did with it. For this study of corn we will take the school *in its second year, when its pupils were more in num*ber, when they were actually farm children, brought in every day by a wagon from their homes, and taken back in the same way at night. There will be more of this second year's work in later articles. For the present, to the study of corn:

* * *

It began in the winter, began with a study of the birthplace and the home of the corn—the soil. We children felt the soil and when the teacher asked us about it, we said it was moist. Then she asked us how much water there was in it. That was a puzzler for a moment, but one of us had the wit to suggest weighing it wet and then drying it out and weighing it again. We took three pounds, and when we had thoroughly dried it, it weighed but two and three-fourths of a pound. And the very smallest and youngest of us knew that a quarter of a pound of water had been driven out. The teacher told us it had evaporated, and that was a good, new word.

* * *

Then she showed us something else. She put the same dried dirt in an iron vessel and set it on the stove and let it get red-hot. When it was cold again we weighed it, and we saw it had lost some more weight. Was that water, too? No, the water had all gone before. So the teacher told us about humus, that it was "organic matter" in the soil, tiny bits of leaves and sticks, and so on. We guessed that it was the humus that had been burned out of the soil, and we now knew that the soil in our garden had water in it and organic matter in it. But there was more.

* * *

The teacher asked us to look closely and we saw sand. How like little rocks the grains of sand are! How were the little rocks made? We rub two rocks together over a piece of white paper and we see—sand is made by rubbing rocks. Do we think this could happen naturally? Rocks rolling down hill, rocks rolling on the bottom of a stream, would be rubbed. We put some stones into a pickle jar, and pour in water. It was almost clear in the jar. And then we shook the bottle hard, and let it settle. Which falls first? Silt, sand or gravel? Then we went to the mouth of a little stream just after a rain and came we found silt, then sand, then gravel, then the stones, just as in the bottle. It was lots of fun, and we learned a great deal.

* * *

Then we took four lamp chimneys and fastened them in a frame, and tied netting under the bottom of each. Into one we put garden soil, into another sand, another clay and into the last one gravel. We poured in water and watched which one held it longest. And then we did the same thing with new soils, and put the ends in water to see which would soak it up the quickest. Now, we already knew that corn must have water, and must have it all the time in the soil, and in this way we learned all about what too much sand or too much clay would do for our garden.

* * *

We put grains of corn between damp sheets of blotting paper, and put some in a warm and some in a cold place. We knew it was a joke when the teacher told us to put some grains in damp sawdust and some in dry sawdust to see which would come up first, for we knew that the dry it never would. We put some grains in a tin can filled with soil that had holes punched in the bottom, and some in a can of soil without any holes. We put some grains in damp paper in the air and some in a tight box.

* * *

The grains of corn that were cold, that were dry, that were too much soaked in the can without holes, that had no air, all did not sprout—"germinate" the teacher taught us to say. But those that had moisture, and heat, and air, and not too much moisture, all began to grow. We took some ears of corn and tested them for seed—planting five grains from each ear and numbering the ear so that we could see what ears would give the best seed. We will remember that we must do this whenever we plant corn, so as to get the best seed.

* * *

And when the little grains we are watching begin to grow! What fun it is to mark the tip of the root and the tip of the stalk with a tiny pen-and-ink mark and then to see next morning how both have grown. As the grains that were in the blotting paper grew we drew pictures each day, showing the bursting grain, the tiny root and stalk, the radicle and plumule.

* * *

Spring came and we began to think of our corn in the garden. We must plant far enough apart so as to give our corn air and sun, but we don't have to plant as far apart as on the farm because we will cultivate our corn by hand and not with mules. We mark off the hills one and a half feet apart and make them in rows two feet apart. We are going to put five grains in each hill, for it is easier to pull up a stalk than to replant. And then, how many hills in your row? And how many grains will it take?

* * *

When our corn is about six inches high we give it some nitrate of soda fertilizer, for corn must have food and this kind of food is not in our soil. We find out all about when to cultivate the corn, and how to keep a dust mulch on top of the ground to keep the under part of the soil from drying out too quickly, and many, many things.

* * *

We have enemies. Smut appears. We burn the infected stalk to keep it from spreading. Weeds and grass come up. We study all the different kinds of weeds and find out how many, many seed they have and how necessary it is to dig them up by the roots and get rid of them altogether. We know now that We must cultivate our corn for three reasons—to loosen the soil so that the corn can get its food and drink, to keep a dust mulch so that the water will not all evaporate, and to kill the weeds and grass that otherwise would steal the food and water from our corn.

* * *

Then we find that weeds are of some good after all. They make a lazy farmer cultivate his corn when if there were no weeds he might not take the trouble to do it just for the sake of making a dust mulch.

* * *

Our corn is in bloom. It has flowers. We find out that the tassel is one part of the flower and that the silk is another part, and that without both parts there will be no corn. There is yellow dust on the tassel, pollen, the teachers tells us. And a grain of that must fall on every single tiny silk to make a single grain of corn.

Old Grant Rice, exhuming the dope on slang across the trail of the ages, falls to find any reason-of-to-be in "Whaddye mean you lost yer dog?" The origin of it is this: A shepherd of the Moabites, twanging the psalter, was walking along the road to Gomorrah Junction, singing: "Oh, where, oh, where is my little dog gone?" And there heard him a woman from Gomorrah Centre and of his meaning she was not ware, yea, she was perplexed, and she said unto him, "Waddye mean, O shepherd, you lost yer dog? And, lo, the city of Gomorrah was destroyed, yea, it was done away with utterly.

Practice What You Preach

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

One of the oft mistaken proverbs I have ever heard is "practice what you preach." I would not give a fig for a man that could not preach better than he can practice. For all that is worth a man's preaching is his ideals and these, unless they are far beyond his practice, are of no value at all.

Every deed is a compromise between our vision and our tools, between the imaginary world our souls conceive and the hard and stubborn actualities.

"Tristan and Isolde" is wondrous music, but it is only second class compared to the harmonies that fled like clouds across the soul of its composer. If we could but hear the music Wagner felt, tried to express, but missed, it would break the world's heart for sweetness. In one respect Michelangelo is the greatest of plastic artists, in this, that in his work is seen the struggle of the imaging soul against its necessary limitations. He seems always striving and failing, yet in his failing short is more genius than in smaller men's smooth perfection.

Our dreams are the best part of us. God save us, if we could only see the things that are! It is the gift of seeing things as they might be that lifts us to greatness.

It is not the flesh and blood woman, it is the penumbral woman, the woman of our warmed and creative fancy, that is the "ever-womanly that leads us on."

It is the dream that lifts a P. D. Armour from being an ordinary trader to being the greatest merchantman of earth. It is the dream that makes the Woolworth building a towering cathedral of modern business. It is the dream that summons the Imperator, mightiest of ships, to shuttle the ocean. It is the heated dream from which emerge the telephone, the steam engine and the airship.

And no house, machine, book or song of man has ever equalled his dream. He goes on preaching perfection to himself and to his brethren, because he is divine. He goes on practicing imperfection, because he is human.

In the acorn is the dream of an oak, and in the human race is the dream of Kingdom Come, the Golden Year, of justice and co-operation. And as the oak grows dream-guided, so mankind grows, slowly, but with what unspeakable majesty! like the great tree Ygdrasil whose roots are in the Past, but whose leaves and golden fruit are in the Future. "Say that we dream," writes Alfred Noyes,

"Say that we dream! Our dreams have woven
Truths that out-face the burning sun;
The lightnings, that we dreamed, have cloven
Time space and linked all lands in one!
Year after year, age after age
Has handed down how fool and child,
For earth's divinest heritage,
The dreams whereon old wisdom smiled.

A Monstrously Cruel Georgia Law That Should Not Stand A Day Unrepealed

(Augusta Chronicle.)

Not so very long ago, the public stood aghast when Senator Ben Tillman's son made an aggressive effort to legally take from their natural mother his and her young children, girls of a tender age; it being the contention that, under the laws of South Carolina, the father was their natural guardian and the mother had no right to her own children, even though there was no charge, nor even insinuation, that she was unfit to rear them.

The whole country rose up in arms against such a law, and severely condemned the effort to separate this mother from her children; the very prominence of the families making it a causus celebre in the courts of that state.

The Chronicle, as much as any other newspaper, took the side of the mother; and we were gratified, in common with the public generally, when the court finally did the best it could under this law and permitted both mother and father to have the care of their children for about an equal period of each year.

But Augusta has, just recently, furnished a similar case; similar, at least, in the fact that two young girl children have been taken from their mother—against whom there are no charges—under the guise of law; in fact, with the clear sanction of law; or, it might even be said, under the distinct command of the law, the reviewing judge clearly intimating that he was not in sympathy with such a law and that, personally, he would like to have an opportunity to rule otherwise.

Far be it from us to attempt to interfere in a do*mestic trouble of this or any other character*—and what we have to say on the subject is entirely impersonal, and does not even attempt to discuss the merits of this particular case—but our views on this subject have not changed in the least since the famous Tillman case was before the public; nor have the public's views changed.

We would speak not so much of this case, or of this particular mother and father, but of future cases of like character and of other mothers and fathers who may agree to disagree—with the right given, by law, to the man to snatch the children from their mother's breast.

Verily, as Judge Hammond pointedly intimated, such a law is a relic of barbarism; for, as he says, while some generations ago we took away from the man the right to hold his wife as a slave, a chattel, and to beat and even murder her at will, we still left her without a vested right in the children which she brought into the world and nursed at her breast. It is simply unthinkable; and no such law should be permitted to remain on the statute books of any civilized state—certainly not the Empire State of the South.

Listen to this from the reviewing judge, as defining Georgia's attitude, her deliberate policy, toward the mothers of this state, where a question of the possession of their own children is concerned—and shudder:

"The court expressly refrains from any reference to the natural rights of the mother who conceived and bore these children, who nursed them at her breast and whose heart and soul is wrapped up in them. The court refrains from discussing these natural rights because they are not legal rights—in law they do not exist. Certiorari dismissed."

The Georgia legislature has barely three weeks longer to remain in session, but, surely, it can spare a few hours, or a few days, of this time to the passage of a bill which will, in a measure at least, recognize the natural rights of mothers in this state. Were we a member of that august body we couldn't sleep—in view of all the facts that have recently come to light concerning this present cruel law—until we had made an effort to correct this injustice.

We may not yet be ready to give to women the vote in Georgia, but we should at least give them an equal right with the father to the possession of their children; in fact, the sensible thing, the right thing, the humane thing, would be to put the burden of proof always upon the father where he would separate mother from child, the burden of proof to show that the mother is grossly unfit and incapable of caring for her own children—and the place for such a mother is in an institution.

All of which we offer without the slightest personal bias in the particular case under discussion—indeed, with much reluctance to discuss it at all—but solely in the hope of arousing the public conscience to strike from the statute books of Georgia a monstrously cruel, wicked, worm-eaten law, which makes of motherhood a mere incident and deprives it of all of its sacred rights and privileges.

FIRST FIRE LIGHTED IN NEW CREMATORY

John Jentzen Strikes the Match—Mayor Inspects the Plant

Chief John Jentzen, of the sanitary department, lighted the main furnace of the new crematory Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock. Simultaneously T. O. Poole, city smoke inspector, and Councilman C. L. Ashley stuck matches to the other two furnaces and the new crematory began its work for the city.

The garbage had been piled in bins, and big hoppers shoveled it in for the burning.

A group of men who are interested in the new crematory went down to see the fires lighted.

Afterwards Mayor Woodward made an inspection of the crematory, expressing no opinion on it.

After September 1 a strict record will be kept of all garbage burned in order to determine just how much it costs per ton to cremate it, but until then only garbage from the center of the city will be burned.

NO AUTOMOBILE FOR ELECTRICIAN TURNER

Other Appropriations Cut Heavily by Aldermanic Board

At its meeting Thursday afternoon the aldermanic board of council came down freely with the axe on certain appropriations amounting to $1,575, thus saving Mayor Woodward quite a bit of trouble in using the veto to do the same thing in pursuance of his economy policy.

The $850 which was to have purchased an automobile for City Electrician R. C. Turner was stricken from the appropriation list, despite the fact that it was unanimously approved by council and by a report of the finance committee signed by five members.

The board also voted down two resolutions, one to appropriate $200 which was to send two delegates to the Municipal league convention in Winnipeg, and the other to refund $125 to William Rasp, assistant manager of the water department.

As a final fling before adjournment the board killed a resolution providing for an appropriation of $400 to build a house over one of the tanks owned by the city at Rhodes and Sidney streets.

The only resolution favored at the meeting was that appropriating $5 with which to pay the Destructor company to add it to an option to erect a lighting plant in connection with the crematory. This resolution was vetoed by the mayor and later approved over his veto by council.

MANUFACTURERS' EXHIBIT IN NEW CHAMBER BUILDING

All manufacturers of Atlanta-made goods will attend a meeting at the chamber of commerce at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon to secure space in the exhibit of their goods which will take place on the four upper floors of the new camber building, corner Pryor street and Auburn avenue.

This location has been recommended by the committee which had a selection in charge. A price was named recently by the chamber on the four upper floors and after careful consideration the committee decided to accept the offer.

The manufacturers' exhibit will be a permanent affair. It is believed that by its location in the chamber building many benefits will accrue to the manufacturers. They will have the use of the shower baths and swimming pools, as well as the floors on which the exhibits will be placed.

W. K. MOWER ASKS COURT TO KEEP CHILDREN HERE

Obtains Temporary Injunction Against Wife Taking Them From City

W. K. Mower, a well known Atlanta business man, Thursday afternoon obtained a temporary injunction in the Fulton county superior court which forbids his wife, from whom he is separated, taking the children away from Atlanta. Judge W. D. Ellis has set September 26 as the date when he will hold a hearing to decide as to the custody of the children.

In his petition filed with the court Thursday Mr. Mower states that his wife has stopped allowing him to take the children to Sunday school, has caused them to be impudent to him, and has threatened to take them away from Atlanta. He says he filed suit for a divorce on January 16, 1912; that Mrs. Mower filed a cross bill and answer and was awarded temporary alimony; that he asked for the custody of the three children, but that Judge George L. Bell, who granted the alimony, made no definite ruling as to the custody of the children, simply informing him that he could see them as often as he wished.

Mr. Mower says he had not been able to see the children for several weeks; that on July 23 he went to 64 Currie street, where his wife has rooms, to see the children; that he made this visit upon the invitation of the owner of the house, but that after a long wait his children appeared and told him their mother had sent word if he did not leave immediately she would call the police and have him locked up.

She Wins Alimony

After a hearing before Judge W. D. Ellis of the superior court Thursday, Mrs. Pearl Walton was awarded alimony from William T. Walton, of 33 English avenue. The court ordered that Walton pay his wife $25 on August 1 and $12.50 per week thereafter. The husband will also have to pay by the court's order, the fees of the attorneys for his wife.

ATHLETICS CONTINUE AT MARIST COLLEGE

Well-Known Prep School Has Not Dropped This Branch of Work

Athletics at Marist college have not been dropped and the officials of the school propose to continue to develop young athletes as in the past. —hTe ony change in the athletic system at the school is the dropping of Joe Bean as athletic instructor and this was made necessary owing to financial conditions.

During the past six or seven years Marist has always been among the leading preparatory schools in every way, athletics included. Some of the best baseball, track, basketball and relay teams that have ever worked around Atlanta have been developed, and such, the officials of the school wish, will continue to be the case. The boys will be trained just as diligently as ever, the school authorities realizing that athletic education is an important factor.

At Marist college there is an excellent gymnasium and athletic field and the pupils at the school have every opportunity for the proper development of their bodies. At the school are instructors who have had years of experience at the athletic end of the school game and they will endeavor to continue to turn out good specimens of manhood.

AGREE ON NEW GRADE FOR SOUTH PRYOR ST.

At a meeting of the South Side Improvement club Thursday night, plans were adopted for the improvement of South Pryor street from Georgia avenue to Ridge avenue. These plans were submitted by the city engineer and call for a three-foot cut at Bass street and a three-foot fill at Dodd street.

The committee expressed the wish to widen South Pryor street, two feet on either side. A majority of the property owners have agreed to give the necessary ground.

The club desires eventually to have a subway under the Southern railway tracks and to continue South Pryor street out to Lakewood, thereby cutting off a considerable distance to this place.

SENATE RECONSIDERS BARROW COUNTY BILL

It Will Not Come Up Again, However, Until Next Session

That the bill creating the new county of Barrow is not dead was proven by the action of the state senate Friday morning in reconsidering its voting down of the measure, which took place at Thursday morning's session.

Immediately after the senate convened Friday, Senator Dutose introduced the motion to reconsider. There was but little discussion on the question, and by vote of 24 to 9 the motion carried.

The purpose of the motion was merely to defer the bill until next session. In the natural order of things it will take its place at the foot of the calendar and cannot possibly be acted on by this year's assembly.

Maid of Transvaal Married in Atlanta to Son of Old Ireland

Old Ireland and the Transvaal sent a man and a maid to be wed in Atlanta a day or so ago. Miss Lily Lee, of Pretoria, Transvaal, South Africa, came thousands of miles and found Thomas W. Harland, once of Bessbrook, Ireland, later of the British army, in South Africa during the Boer war—found him waiting for her. She became the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Gillett, and on July 19 she and Mr. Harland were married. The wedding ceremony was solemnized quietly by Rev. Russell K. Smith at the Church of the Epiphany, Episcopal, in Inman Park. Mr. and Mrs. Gillett were the witnesses.

The wedding announcement will come as a great surprise to the numerous friends of Mr. Harland, who is connected with the Foote & Davies company. More has not been said of it because of a recent bereavement among Mr. Harland's relatives. The wedding was very quiet, because at the time the relative was seriously ill.

This romance just now consummated in Atlanta started in Cape Town, South Africa. Mr. Harland had seen service with the British army in the Boer war. It was in Cape Town that he met the young lady who now is Mrs. Harland—Miss Lily, the youngest daughter of Charles Beresford Lee, of Cape Town. In coming to the United States to wed, they left numerous friends in Pretoria and Johannesburg and Cape Town, as well as in the south of England, where she visited for some time previous to coming to Atlanta.

Mr. Harland, dubbed "Pat" by his intimates in Atlanta, lived for several years in South Africa following the Boer war. Six years ago he came to the United States, and for the past five years he has resided in Atlanta, winning a host of friends here in that period.

ATLANTA SOCIETY TO SEE MILLIONAIRES' GAME

Polo, the keenest, most exciting and brilliant of sports, commonly called the millionaire's own game, will be seen by Atlanta society Wednesday afternoon, August 6, on the parade grounds at Fort McPherson, through the courtesy of Colonel Van Orsdale.

The game will be called at 3:30, a team from the officers of the post and one made up of Atlanta players with a number from the Aiken and Sumter clubs to be matched against each other, both clubs to have four sponsors including eight of the prettiest girls of the younger set, Governor and Mrs. Slaton having been invited as special guests of the event.

Among the Atlanta men particularly interested are Dr. J. A. McLeay, Mr. Samuel Slicer, Mr. Lamar Hill, Dr. Joseph Seamons and others.

The sponsors will ride in a gaily decorated tallyho, making, with the crowds of parked motor cars and spectators afoot and on horseback, a picture suggestive of the polo grounds of England and the north, where the game has long had its devotees.

For women in America polo is only a year-old sport, but one which is gaining in favor daily. Orlando has had its polo grounds for twenty-four years, Sumter, Aiken, Fort Oglethrope being among other southern places where the game is a feature of the out-of-door life.

The organization of an Atlanta team will be of interest to all horse lovers and the forthcoming exhibition game will be eagerly anticipated. Colonel M. E. Carthew-Yorstoun, a retired British army officer, will be the referee and is well qualified, Colonel Carthew-Yorstoun being one of the crack players of his regiment in Indian for twenty-nine years.

The following notes on the game will be full of interest to the uninitiated:

Notes on Polo.

Polo may be a new game in Atlanta, but the Persians played it 1,000 years ago and it is the most popular game in India.

It is played the same today as in former years and there is nothing new that can be written about it. It is termed the king of sports and no game can approach it for excitement and no other game gives such beneficial exercise, for it calls into play every muscle of the body.

It gives poise and carriage and keeps one from getting old.

The game is for the old as well as the young, for the lady as well as for the gentleman. There is no age limit and you can play polo as long as you are able to ride a pony.

It is called the millionaires' game because it is the favorite sport of the famous millionaires and not because it is an expensive sport, for it can be played at little cost. But when a player wants to take part in the games abroad and carries with him his string of ponies, then it is expensive, but to play at home is entirely different.

The game is played on a lawn 300 by 150 yards with a goal at each end and the width of each goal is 24 feet.

It is usually played with four on each side, but any number may play the game. The ball is of wood, three and one-eighth inches in diameter and weighs five ounces, usually made of willow.

The mallets used are from four to four and a half feet in length, according to size of player and pony. Ponies learn the game as quickly as the players and enjoy it as keenly.

The ponies must not exceed 14.2 hands high. They must be quick to start and stop and have speed. During a game a pony will run 8 or 9 miles. The best ponies come from Texas and the west. This season 400 ponies were shipped from Dallas, Tex., to New York and sold for $84 each. According to the rules of the American Polo association, no member is allowed to play with outside clubs unless permission is granted by the association. Mr. W. A. Hazard, secretary of the association, has graciously granted permission for any member to take part in a game that has been arranged and offers his assistance in any way.

An effort is being made to have other places organize polo clubs in the south so that games can b arranged.

The Atlanta team proposes to own a number of ponies which can be used by members who ride but have none of their own.

The Prevailing Note In Retailing

In a recent JOURNAL advertisement we saw the following sentence:

"Not only is our merchandise of the very highest quality, but our store service is studiously polite, efficient and obliging."

This kind of retailing is what the public has a right to expect, and does expect. It is the kind of retailing that Atlanta's progressive merchants are offering to their patrons and telling them about in the columns of THE JOURNAL.

When one goes shopping in these days of progressive retailing, it is best to start out fortified with all of the available information it is possible to secure.

A careful reading of JOURNAL advertising columns from day to day, not only saves much time and worry, but shows one where one may secure highly satisfactory service and attention.

What Anne Ritten house Says

There are so many clever combinations made this summer with shoes and stockings that women can make their feet and ankles look interesting even when they can't make them well-shaped. While a woman is human enough to remain vain about a small ankle and a slender foot she has lost the consciousness of large feet, and does not hesitate to display them no matter what their size and shape.

This is a healthy sign of the times, for it means that women are more vain of other attractions than merely the number three shoe or a number five glove. Our race of women have been brought up on two centuries of tradition concerning the beauty of any small hand, and foot. And, now! With the average shoe number six, the average glove six and and a half and the average waist twenty-nine inches, what can women do with such vanity as was begot in them by their ancestors? They have thrown it overboard.

It is rather hard on the modern women that with her striving after the natural figure and the healthiest kind of life and the elimination of silly vanities, she should have the whole world down on her like a pack of wolves.

I heard a conservative, intelligent man say, as a woman passed, who was laced as far as nature would stand it, with the flesh pushed up to her collar bone and her shoulders stiff as a ramrod, and her feet bound into number four shoes, "Now, there's a beautiful figure. Why can't all other women try to look like that."

The women who heard him sniffed and one of them tried to explain to him the leaps and bounds toward health and naturalness and lack of artifice that pervades the women's figures of today, but it was useless. Men cling to tradition and there is no argument that prevails with them. If the Chinese women had had their way their feet would have been unbound a century ago.

Stockings That Match Gowns.

Among the new happy ideas in fashionable stockings, is to match them to the gown and then wear whatever shoes one fancies. And there is a lot of art background, but better knowledge of art has changed the old method into a more acceptable new one.

If a woman wears an American beauty voile gown she wears silk stockings to match and white, black, silver, or linene slippers. White shoes with a certain shade of red, but when they are set off with merely a pearl or rhinestone buckle across the vamp they look exceptionally well with a red stocking.

When white gowns are worn white stockings are the rule, but this is not amiss to add a pair of black slippers, the only time in which women depart from this fashion, is when they wear short ones, skirts of cream, or pique, then they wear vivid stockings and white canvas shoes. Oxford ties have returned in a favor and rival the pumps in canvas, to the colonial pumps of white buckskin. With either shaped shoe the polished stocking is acceptable.

White Stockings; Black Shoes.

Every one does not care for the wearing of the black strapped cothurnes, but the majority of women like the effect, the idea of a white cream, or pale gray stocking with black pumps. The streets of the large cities are filled with women wearing these and the effect in summer is very attractive.

There is a heavy cream silk stocking with a white clocking at the side which is considered smart, and with this goes a black patent leather slipper with a cut steel buckle. Some women wear white stockings with black Oxford ties, but the effect is far from good. It is strange how rapidly the English pump with its flat bow gave way this summer to all other kinds of slippers. Its intrinsic merit remains unchanged; it is fashion which has taken up with the other model.

The Evening Story — The Surprise

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

"It doesn't seem fair to keep you waiting."

"Won't you run in and tell her now, Kathleen? Please do, dear. You know I have to go back to the city tonight." The young man drew his arm more closely about the girl's slim waist and kissed her cheek. They were sitting in an old-fashioned grape arbor, screened completely from both the house and the road.

For a moment Kathleen let her head rest comfortably on the boy's shoulder, and then she hastily rose to her feet. "No, Jerry, I can't," she said. "Somehow when it comes to it I can't. I believe it really would kill granny. You know, she is awfully feeble. The doctor told me that some time she might just sleep away."

"Lots of times old people, after they get quite feeble, live on and on. Have you and I got to wait until your grandmother is ninety?"

"I don't know, Jerry. It doesn't seem fair to keep you waiting indefinitely, but I can't bring myself to hurt dear old grandmother by suggesting any change."

"Maybe the change wouldn't be so hard on her as you think, Kathleen. We'll have a nice little steam-heated flat in the city. There won't be any hard chores for you to do, my Kathleen." Jerry's eyes sparkled at the vision of this little home which he had had so often since going to the city to work.

"She wouldn't care anything about those comforts, Jerry. I'd just love a little flat like that, but it's different with granny. She's lived right here all her life. You see, every memory she has is connected with this old place and the village. It would be just like uprooting an old tree to take her away, wouldn't it? And she's so used to me. We've been here alone together almost ever since she and grandpa took me, a homeless little orphan, three years old. I can't desert her, now that she is old and weak. You wouldn't think I ought, would you, Jerry?" Kathleen pleaded with a little sob in her voice which melted Jerry.

"No, maybe not," he grudgingly agreed, but he caught her in his arms and kissed her more passionately than he ever had before. "It seems hard, though, that now, while we are young and I'm doing so well, we've got to stay apart. The Lord knows how long!"

"Yes, Jerry"—Kathleen shed a few tears, on his shoulder—"and I wish you to know that it's just as hard for me as it is for you, and moving away," said: "Now, I must go in and put granny to bed. You'll be back early?"

"I'll be back in time to spend an hour or so before the train. I'm going to give you a little surprise when I come back in the moonlight."

"Why, this lovely locket you brought me is surprise enough. I like it even better than my ring on account of the engraving on it, 'Always.' It means so much when we have to part."

"But my surprise is quite different from rings and lockets," Jerry laughed a little self-conscious laugh.

"Then let me go to granny, and do come back as soon as you can—" she laughed a little—"with the surprise."

Jerry tried to kiss her again, but, still laughing, she gently eluded him and ran into the house. With a heavy heart he walked away.

Kathleen found her grandmother asleep beside the little dining room stove, where even in very mild weather she kept a fire for her comfort. "Don't you think you'd like to go to bed?" she asked, touching lightly the withered hands which lay loosely clasped on the gray alpaca skirt. "You're sleepy, granny."

"Yes, so I am." The old woman opened her eyes slowly and looked quizzically at Kathleen. "It takes Jerry a long time to say good-bye, doesn't it?"

"I hope you didn't get tired waiting for me to come in."

"Oh, no, child. It was all right. I was napping most of the time, but once in a while I woke up and wondered if you and Jerry hadn't anything Are you thinking of Jerry?"

"Why, yes, sometimes," answered Kathleen, with sweet directness, "but there's nothing settled yet. You like Jerry, don't you, granny?"

"Jerry? Why, yes; Jerry's a fine lad, and so was his father. He was real smart, and I guess Jerry isn't dull. But you're both so young yet."

"Yes, I know. We won't think about anything for ages yet; but I'm glad you like Jerry."

"Yes, Jerry's smart. I remember as well as if it were yesterday the terrible cold day he brought Lizzie home from school on his sled because he said he owed her something because he had spelled her down. He was the only boy in school who ever did. I used to think they might marry when the time came. They were both so smart and such good friends, but Lizzie never grew to marry any one."

Kathleen smiled and patted her hand. She knew that granny's mind was wandering back fifty years or more, and that the boy Jerry she spoke of was the father of her Jerry.

A half hour later Kathleen tucked in the covers about the shrunken little form and kissed with added tenderness the closely-lined brow. She felt an exaltation of deeper consecration to this dear shadow of the sturdy woman who had begun a mother her twenty years before and her eyes filled with remorseful tears at the remembrance of how she had ever so briefly during her talk with Jerry wavered from her duty.

"Shall I read a chapter tonight?" Kathleen asked.

"No. I'm too sleepy to listen. I'll just close my eyes and think over the shepherd's psalm. The words of it come to me so easy, you know. I'll be asleep in a few minutes. Good night. You're a good child. Will you sit by a little?"

"Yes, Granny." Kathleen turned the lamp low and looked out of the window at the rising moon. She thought of Jerry—how brave and true he was and how well she knew he would never relax their waiting harder by a word of reproach. Her grandmother fell into a restless sleep and Kathleen once or twice soothed her with a word or gentle touch. All summer her grandmother's early evening slumber had often been disturbed by vexing dreams and Kathleen had learned to quiet her with voice or hand. Suddenly her grandmother opened her eyes and stared at her quite strangely.

"Where's little Lizzie?" she asked. "Are you Lizzie?"

"Why, granny, you—"

"Don't call me granny, Lizzie. That's silly. I'm your mother."

Kathleen choked down the lump that came into her throat and tried to speak.

"Why don't you say something, Lizzie? You're sitting there so unnatural."

"You're sleepy, Granny."

"Mother," murmured Kathleen.

"Listen, what's that, Lizzie ?"

Kathleen heard the clear notes of a cornet coming it seemed, across the little orchard lot.

"Listen, Lizzie, it's 'Kathleen Mavourneen.' Your father used to play that when we were courting, and there was a dear little strange girl I named Kathleen just for remembrance. Maybe it's your father, Lizzie, in the arbor. It's a long time since he's played ani, isn't it."

"Yes," answered Kathleen, and her heart beat wildly as she looked anxiously at her grandmother, whose eyes were again closed, and she thought of Jerry out there in the moonlight with the surprise—this great surprise.

"Or, Jerry, Jerry, I need you," she cried brokenly out of the window, but Jerry, hidden in the arbor, saw and heard her not, for his only answer was to the first notes of the old melody, "How Can I Leave Thee?"

"There, your father always was playing that to me, Lizzie. But he's gone, Lizzie, and you've gone, little daughter." The old voice trailed away into a weak whisper. "He's calling me."

Then the aged woman closed her eyes and lay so silent that Kathleen thought she was sleeping until suddenly she sat up, her face illumined and glorified with an eager look that seemed to reach out way beyond Kathleen. "Home, Sweet Home," she said weakly but clearly. "Yes, John, I'm coming home to you; I'm coming," and then she fell back on her pillow and again closed her eyes. Kathleen laid her trembling fingers on her wrist and felt with infinite relief the faint but certain beating of the pulse. For a few minutes she sat beside the bed, scarcely conscious of the music her lover was making until the cornet rang with the old question, "Buffalo Girls, Aren't You Coming Out Tonight?" Kathleen smiled very faintly. Jerry was growing impatient. She leaned over her grandmother and gently spoke to her, but there was no answer. Then she slipped noiselessly from the room and ran lightly downstairs through the door out into the garden to Jerry and grasped his hand:

"Come," she said, and in the moonlight he could see the fear in her white face.

"What is it?" he asked as she drew him swiftly to the house.

"Grandmother, she—— Oh, Jerry, I don't know what to think."

In another moment they were standing together gazing tenderly down at the quiet little figure on the bed.

"She just slept away, Kathleen."

"Yes," Kathleen dashed her hand across her eyes and turned her quivering face to Jerry. "Your surprise made her going glad. It was wonderful and beautiful, Jerry. The surprise was for dear Granny."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

Old Jed Thumper sat in his bullbriar castle in the middle of the Old Pasture scowling fiercely and muttering to himself. He was very angry, was old Jed Thumper. He was so angry that he stopped his stormy muttering and began to chew rapidly on nothing at all but his temper, which is a way angry Rabbits have. The more he chewed his temper the angrier he grew. He was big and stout and strong and gray. He had lived so long in the Old Pasture that he felt that it belonged to him, and that no other Rabbit had any right there unless he said so. Yet here was a strange Rabbit who had had the impudence to come up from the Green Meadows and refused to be driven away. Such impudence! He couldn't remember when such a thing had happened before.

Of course it was Peter Rabbit of whom old Jed Thumper was thinking. It was two days since Peter had caught a glimpse of Peter, but he knew that Peter was still in the Old Pasture, for he had found fresh tracks each day. That very morning he had visited his favorite feeding ground only to find Peter's tracks there. It had made him so angry that he had lost his appetite and he had gone straight back to his bullbriar castle to think it over. At last old Jed Thumper stopped chewing on nothing. He scowled more fiercely than ever and stamped the ground impatiently.

"I'll hunt that fellow till I kill him or drive him so far from the Old Pasture that he'll never think of coming back. I certainly will!" he said out loud, and started forth to hunt for Peter Rabbit.

Now, it would have been better for the plans of Old Jed Thumper if he had kept them to himself instead of speaking aloud. Two dainty little ears heard what he said, two soft, gentle eyes watched him leave the bullbriar castle. He started straight for the far corner of the Old Pasture, and, although he didn't know it, Peter Rabbit had found a warm little sunning bunk. But he hadn't gone far when, from way off in the opposite direction, he heard a sound that made him stop short and prick up his long ears to listen. There it was again—thump, thump! He was just going to thump back an angry reply when he thought better of it.

"If I do that," thought he, "I'll only warn him, and he'll run away, just as he has before."

So instead he turned and hurried in the direction from which the thumps had come, taking the greatest care to make no noise. Every few jumps he would stop to listen. Twice more he heard those thumps and each time new rage filled his heart, and for a minute or two he chewed his temper.

"He's down at my blueberry patch," he muttered, and hurried on.

At last he reached the blueberry patch. Very softly he crept to a place where he could see and not be seen. No one was there. No, sir, no one was there! He waited and watched, but there wasn't a hair of Peter Rabbit to be seen. He was just getting ready to go look for Peter Rabbit's tracks when he heard that thump, thump again. This time it came from his favorite clover patch, where he never allowed even his favorite daughter, little Miss Fuzzytail, to go. Anger nearly choked him as he hurried in that direction. But when he got there, just as before, no one was to be seen.

So all the morning long old Jed Thumper hurried from one place to another and never once caught sight of Peter Rabbit. Can you guess why?

Birthday Party

A pretty party was given by Miss Annie Mae Eubanks Saturday in celebration of her sixth birthday.

Games were played on the lawn and lemonade was served from a well on the porch.

The table had for a centerpiece a cake with six red candles, the chandeliers being veiled with red tulle. The favors were one sacks of peanuts tied with red ribbon and a flag in the top. Cream and cake was served to twenty-five little friends.

BLACK SATIN BATHING TUNIC

When on the sands young women make striking pictures of bright color: but when in the water they find that black satin is the most serviceable and becoming fabric for these costumes. The one pictured is edged with white satin bands and embroidered dots. It is made in a one-piece tunic that fastens in the back.

HAPPENINGS IN LONDONTOWN

The marriage of the German emperor's daughter recalls an amusing little incident which happened on the occasion of the first wedding the kaiser ever attended. This was the wedding of King Edward and Queen Alexandra—then, of course, prince and princess of Wales—in 1863, when the future kaiser was a little boy of four. A very troublesome boy he was, too—a sort of Royal Fidgity Phil; and for this reason he was placed at the ceremony between his two uncles, the dukes of Cambridge and Edinburgh, who had been told off to keep him in order. The service was a very long one, and little Wilhelm began to fidget, whereupon he received sundry nudges and whispered admonitions from his uncles. Thoroughly exasperated, the naughty little boy suddenly knelt down, and bit the calves of both his uncles' legs to such purpose that they were hard put to it not to cry out with the pain and suddenness of the attack.

All sorts of stories are going the rounds of the clubs concerning the forthcoming Versailles ball. One is to the effect that several of the most likely men to take part in the quadrilles absolutely refuse, in spite of the almost tearful entreaties of their lady friends to shave their moustaches off for the occasion. The moutache does not go well with a powdered wig, and would be a great chronological error.

There has been a great slump in the profits of the gaming houses that are still running London. Until the police took action, running a gambling den was a gold mine to the proprietor, but the activity of Scotland Yard has, it is thought, frightened away most of the gamblers and "pigeons" who were anxious to have a flutter. Visitors to London who have been staying at West End hotels should be chary about making new acquaintances, as the "runners" of gambling-house proprietors are known to be on the look out for possible dupes.

News has reached London to the effect that the state of health of the czarina has given rise to happy expectations in the royal circle.

Last Visit of Crackers to Montgomery, and Johnny Dobbs Is Anxious to Play All Three Battles Booked

Montgomery, Ala., July 25.—With a double-header scheduled to cancel the game postponed from Thursday, there is threatening weather here early. Nevertheless the game will be played if possible, as this is Atlanta's last appearance in Montgomery, and, if this double-header is rained out it will have to be played on Atlanta's diamond.

If only one game is rained out a double-header is certainly on tap for Saturday.

The first game will be called at 2:15.

Both teams want the games, and both are in the scrap for first place. Billy Smith will probably use his new recruit, Clarke, in t he first game, with Chapman catching. In the second Price or Conzelman will work for the visitors with Dunn catching.

For the locals E. Brown, one of the league's best, and Donahue will be the battery in the first while Sparks or Case and Donahue will work the second.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

(By Associated Press.)

MOBILE, Ala., July 25.—Floyd Kroh will work on the mound for Chattanooga in the second game of the series with Mobile at Monroe field this afternoon, with Street behind the bat. W. Robertson will pitch for Mobile, with Schmidt catching. The weather is threatening.

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Wilson and Brenton, for New Orleans, with Adams and Angermier catching, against Fleharty and Breckenridge, with Gibson back of the plate, for Nashville, are the probable batteries for the doubleheader this afternoon. The games are to be limited to seven innings by agreement. A doubleheader is also scheduled for Saturday.

Pitchers Gudger and Peddy, Outfielder Stevenson and Infielder Erwin, recalled from various Cotton States league clubs, joined the local club today.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 25.—Weather conditions permitting Birmingham and Memphis will play the second game of the present series today.

Parsons and Snell for Memphis with Evans and Mayer for Birmingham are the probable battery selections.

SCOTT IS MARVEL OF MINORS; BEST FIELDING OF SHORTSTOPS

Midget Scott, the sensational sho rtstop of the St. Paul club.

Finn Winner In His Fight Against Club

Mike Wanted New Faces to Keep in Pennant Fight and Owners Balked at Spending Coin—Finn Is to Stick

Sir Michael Finn, pilot of the Mobile ball club, and the directors and owners of the club have just concluded a most stormy little interview in which Mike finally won out. The trouble started some days ago and for a time it looked as if it would result in Finn being beheaded, but the directors finally awoke to the fact that he is a bit too valuable and decided to hold to him. And a wiser move could not have been made.

The trouble between Finn and the owners of the club is said to have arisen through the fact that the directors would not purchase a few needed players for the Irishman. Mike fully realized that injuries and sickness had badly crippled his bunch and that new faces would be needed to keep the club up in the pennant race and so he went right after them. And when he failed to get hold of them the trouble came up.

There is no better manager in the Southern league than this same Michael Finn and to let him out would be suicide for Mobile. Mike does not have to manage a ball club to make a living and this he doubtless told the Mobile officials and a settlement was made. Slce going to Mobile Mike has put the Alabama city on the baseball map and at very little cost. He has the knack of getting good players at little cost. And in that way he has saved the Mobile association a bunch of money and to be threatened with dismissal when he asks for new players so as to keep a good position in the pennant fight.

The Mobile club right now is not the best in the league, yet it is a good organization and with one or two needed faces will be right up in the running when the last man is out. It takes a first division club to draw in Mobile and the directors are making a mistake when they don't go out and get the needed players.

An Average Of Six Runs

Mackmen Have Great Way of Putting Home the Runs in Every Game

Connie Mack's White Elephants, pace setters in the race for the American league pennant, have averaged nearly six runs to the game. In the first seventy-one contests in which they participated, the Mackmen crossed the plate 404 times, errors of th eopposition helping them to forty-nine counters and battery misplays of their adversaries enabling them to acquire ten tallies. Eleven markers were secured through the medium of steals, leaving 334 runs that the Athletics actually batted in.

Mack had a splendid quintette of timely hitters in Frank Baker, Jack McInnis, Eddie Collins, "Rube" Oldring and Jack Barry, the best of the lot, according to records, being Baker, The Mauling Marylander, who stands a good chance of winning the Chalmers car offered to the American league player who does the most for his team, has hammered home 62 tallies and if he keeps on hitting in the pinches as he has been doing, will possibly set a new record for the American league in driving in runs.

"Stuffy" McInnis ranks second as a timely hitter among the Mackmen. He has put the finishing touches to fifty tallies. Eddie Collins, with forty-one, ranks third, and Oldring and Barry are tied for the fourth position, each with thirty-eight runs batted home and Strunk is a fine sixth, with thirty counters driven in to his credit. In fact, all the Mackmen have been hitting in the pinches, which is the principal reason the team shot to the fore and has stayed there.

Even Ensign Cottrell, a slabman who was never accused of being a heavy hitter, batted valiantly while he was with the Athletics. He took part only in one full game, but in that contest he cleared the bases of their three inhabitants with a double.

Major Teams Are All Idle

NEW YORK, July 25.—Not since the season's early weeks has such a baseball hiatus occurred as that of Thursday, when not a single major league game was played and minor league contests in the east were conspicuous for their rarity. It was an off day anyway for the American league, the western teams being on their way east to open new series. Four games were scheduled in the National league, but rain prevented all of them, as it did numerous minor organization engagements on the day's program.

In general was the rain in major league eastern territory that no attempts were made to start games in New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, while in Boston the Braves and the Reds had played less than an inning when the downpour came. It was the last day of the current series in each city and in consequence double-headers are likely to be arranged for, to be played during the next eastern invasion of the western contingent.

Pittsburg had to leave New York without a single victory, the Giants having taken three straight. In Boston Cincinnati took two out of three, while Chicago had to be content with one in three in Philadelphia.

Boston and St. Louis divided the two games played in the former city.

The eastern clubs in the National are on their way west today, but only one game—Philadelphia at Pittsburg—is scheduled for tomorrow. In the American league Chicago will open in Boston, Cleveland in New York, St. Louis in Washington and Detroit in Philadelphia.

Interest in Golf Is Right Now at Fever Heat--Many Flights to Fill

It now appears likely that some seventy-five golfers will tee off in the qualifying round for the J. Carroll Payne trophy, which is to be started on the East Lake links Saturday. The qualifying round will last throughout the day, but a tip would be to play as early in the morning as possible, for the daily shower usually butts in about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The players will qualify according to their net scores and handicaps will apply in each of the matches that are played. A handsome cup is offered the winner with a cup going to the player winning in easy of the flights that fill. The finals in all flights will be just 18 holes.

The first and second rounds of the tournament are to be completed by July 31, and the third round by August 2, and all the finals by August 3.

OPENING FOR GOOD PITCHER

Right at present there is an excellent opening for a good young hurler who wishes to enter professional ball. A left-hander is preferred though this is not essential.

Since the organization of the several small leagues in this vicinity there has turned up many good openings for youngsters who are anxious to enter professional ball. While it is not so easy to make good in the small bushes in this section it is not hard if you have any baseball talent at all and it is the best chance in the world to get a tryout and see just what you really have.

Any young hurler who is out for an immediate trial or any fan who has a friend seeking such a trial will be accommodated if he but communicates witlf the sporting department of The Journal.

Can't Select Field For Army-Navy

(By Associated Press.)

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 24.—The army and navy athletic officials are still at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis, alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter.

The army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

It is nothing uncommon for major league players to perform so sensationally that they are talked and written about. That's what they are major leaguers for.

But every once in a while some youngster in a big or little minor league begins to cut up in so astonishing a manner that he immediately becomes an attraction and the scouts camp upon his trail. Thus he becomes a "wonder."

Midget Scott, shortstop of the St. Paul American association team, is one of these wonders. He is the best young infielder in the biggest of the minor leagues this year. Scott is the property of the Boston team of temporary world's champions and is playing with St. Paul under an optional agreement, or something else whereby both clubs can avoid the anti-farming clause.

Last year Scott played with the Portsmouth, Ohio, team, where a Boston scout picked him up. He was sent to St. Paul this year for needed seasoning. By fall he will be ready for the big ring and will be given a chance to show in the American league, doubtless.

The boy is a sparkling fielder, one of the best in the game right now. He has been hitting well, too, having an average of .290, and he is fifth in the association in stolen bases. But it is as a fielder that he shines brightest and while he may have to wait a few years to displace Gardner, Yerkes or Heinie Wagner, it doesn't seem probable that he will play another year in the minors.

Rain Put Off Atlanta Game

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 25.—With both teams on edge for a victory on Thursday the rain came down in such torrents that there could be no thought of playing the game, and it was postponed until Friday, when a double bill will be pulled off.

The series means much to the local team, as Mobile has climbed within one game of first place, and is ready at a moment's notice to assume their leadership again. The visitors are equally on edge as they are only three and a half games behind Montgomery and are fighting every minute for the top place.

SPORTING SPLINTERS

Rube Marquard is starting later in the season with his winning streak this year. Maybe it will last all through the season.

There were no games in the big circuits, but the rain favored the teams behind for it robbed the Giants and Athletics of a chance to win another game.

Larry Chappelle has not hit the ball in the last two or three games. It is about time for some one to hail him as an $18,000 lemon. We refrain from such idle speculation. He might do a Marquard and turn the laugh in the other direction.

The release of Cy Seymour by Boston marks the passing of a veteran in baseball circles. It is a wonder that Cy ever got into the big show as he was tremendously handicapped by a small pair of hands. His handles were so small that they looked almost deformed, nevertheless he got by for a long period of usefulness.

News trickles out from Chicago that Packey McFarland and Willie Richie have opened negotiations and that Packey "is willing," while Richie is considering the proposition.

It is no news to state that Packey is willing. He generally is, but it is news to us that Richie should be backward about closing the deal, especially after the pugnacious talk he indiged in when Rivers was safely stretched on the mat.

Bean to Stay With Atlanta

Amateur and prep school athletics in Atlanta will suffer a severe loss should Joe Bean, the ex-Marist coach, decide to leave the city and pursue his profession in some other clime. It was only a day or so ago that he was notified by the officials at Marist college, which school he put on the athletic map, that his services would no longer be needed and that throws him out of line for work for the fall. During the past season, most all the schools having arranged for coaches for this season.

There is no better amateur athletic instructor in the south than Joe Bean. Coming to Atlanta some seven years ago he at once became interested in prep school and amateur athletics and in his work at Marist college has developed some star college players as well as a number who are now starring in the professional game.

During the past couple of years Bean has been spending his off season at Marist by developing the amateurs of the city. He has planned and successfully carried through a number of road races and track meets and right now is just in his prime at this clas sof work. He loves the game, and is never happier than when instructing some young athlete in the art of properly developing and caring for himself.

Right now the ex-Marist coach is interested in the playgrounds of Atlanta and his work during the past summer has unbuilt this line of endeavor remarkably. There are more youngsters interested in the work at the playgrounds than ever before and all because Mr. Bean has made the work more attractive and valuable. One of the wisest moves that could be made would be to retain him right here in Atlanta to look after this work the year round, this being a step the park board will eventually take.

McLoughlin Is The Favorite

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 25.—Play in the final round of the contest for the Dwight F. Davis international lawn tennis trophy began today under ideal weather conditions.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the American champion, was drawn against J. Parke, of the English team, while R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, was match against C. P. Dixon.

The famous center court of the all-English Lawn Tennis association ground, although showing signs of the wear after the strenuous session was in fairly good shape.

The American players spent the morning under the coaching of Robert D. Wreen, president of the United States National Lawn Tennis association, and Harold H. Hackett, captain of the American Davis cup team.

Both McLoughlin and Williams appeared to be at the top of their form.

The English players who had just returned from a series of tournament games throughout Great Britain, also in Amid the large crowd in the grandstand were a number of Americans including a number of veteran players who had made the trans-Atlantic trip to see the challenge round played.

McLoughlin and Parke played first. McLoughlin served the opening game and won the first point in the match.

McoLughlin won the first set from Parke by ten games to eight.

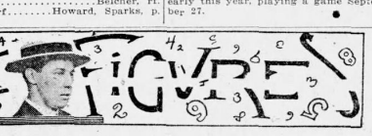
BASEBALL WORLD TURNED UPSIDE DOWN



It is youth versus age in the pitching battles in the two major leagues. In the American it is a youngster—Lefty Boehling—who is showing the way to the other stars of the circuit while in the National a veteran—Seaton—is out in front by a comfortable margin.

Boehling, of the Washington club, is getting his name as leading flinger in the American circuit has been in but eleven games where he gets a credit one way or the other, but of those battles h has won and his percentage is 1,000. There are several veterans including Walter Johnson, Eddie Plank, Chief Bender and Cy Falkenberg who have worked many more battles than Boehling, and have good averges. All are pitching the most jam-up ball possible but they can't better nine successive wins.

Al Demaree, also of Southern league fame, is the only young star in the National league who is anywhere near the mark set by a bunch of old-timers. It is Seaton, Humphries, Mathewson, Cheney and Robinson, all of whom have been in the big show for many seasons, who are putting up the pace. Demaree has 7 wins and 2 defeats, being tied for second place with Humphries.

Houck, Connie Mack's young hurler who is showing such promise, is the wildest hurler in either circuit, as an $18,000 lemon. We refrain from such idle speculation. He might do boy with the Cubs, is the worst offender at this end of the game with 72 walks in 116 innings. Tesreau, of New York, is another great off-ender with 67 walks in 154 rounds. Brown, another Mack youngster, is second among the American leaguers with 70 walks in 139 innings.

At allowing runs Willett, of Detroit, and Groom, of Washington, are the candy kids. In 132 innings Willett has allowed 81 batters to cross the pan and Groom in 150 rounds has given up 80 scores. McConnell, of New York, with 71 runs in 134 rounds; Hamilton, of St. Louis, with 68 in 174 innings; Wellman, of St. Louis, with 68 in 129 innings, and Leverez, of St. Louis, with 67 in 102 innings are others off whom it is easy to tally.

In connection with this is shown the fifteen leading hurlers in each of the major leagues.

Cub Uniforms Burned

CHICAGO, July 25.—When the Chicago Nationals return to the West side park tomorrow they will appear in new and span in new uniforms. The old set was consumed in a fire which destroyed a laundry yesterday. It is a question whether the club, the players or the laundry will settle for the new raiment.

Races Postponed

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain Thursday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off today and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

Richie was willing to weigh many pounds for Rivers, but with Packey we venture it is a different matter entirely.

Wiltse Frightened Youngsters Upon Debut in the Majors

BY GEORGE WILTSE

NEW YORK, July 25.—'Twas the occasion of the opening the first day that I came to New York as a member of the Giants. It was in the spring of 1904 and the Giants were playing the Phillies. I was a youngster, and, candidly, I did not expect to be capable of sticking around, although I had made up my mind to do my best to keep my name on the score cards.

On that particular day I drifted through the club house gate on to the playing field. No one noticed me; in fact I doubt if any in that big crowd knew that I was even a member of the team. I found a seat for myself on the bench in one corner. Every time one of the veteran players deigned to notice me, even if it was only by a look, I felt complimented. For the most part I guess these looks were merely sent in my direction in a sort of wonderment that I was still taking up space with the club. I selected that corner seat so that I would be out of every one's way. The feeling that they were all doing me a favor by letting me live, seemed to grow me in its grasp, and I couldn't make it, try as I would.

Mathewson was chosen to pitch the game. He got away to a bad start, and it was evident almost before the game was fairly under way that a relief pitcher would have to be sent in. McGraw scanned his players. Possibly it was the seat in the corner that forced him to look at me the last and made a lasting impression, as it were, upon me. He looked at me a second time as if he were weighing the matter of sending me in for my bumps over again and then said: "Go out and warm up."

If I ever wished the earth would open and swallow me it was then. I don't think I ever had seen so many persons gathered as if the rest of the world must be deserted.

NOTICED THE CROWD.

I tried my best to take my mind off the crowd and concentrate it on the business at hand. It was in the third or fourth inning that the Phillies made seven runs off Matty and I was told to go in. As I stepped in the box my mind was made up that I would not be able to put anything on the ball. I heard the rumbling of the crowd. I imagined that it was snickering at me and picturing in its mind the awful fate that waited me. I pictured that fate, too. I decided to look at the first batter to face me. I was quite sure that he was sneering and that he grabbed his bat tighter than ever before. I even thought I saw him measuring the height of the distant field fence with his eye as if he was determined to drive the first ball I pitched over it. And then I heard the voice of Jack Warner, the old catcher—and he was some catcher—talking to me. He was saying: "Come on, George, you've got enough stuff on that ball to make these guys look like bushers. They've been lucky so far today. They can't hit it." Do you know I actually believed him. I began to think they had been lucky. He signalled for a curve. I was wishing he would call for a straight one, because I feared that I would not be able to curve the ball. I was too afraid to shake my head until he called for a fast one. So I pitched the curve. I almost twisted my wrist off trying to put enough on the ball. Sure enough it curved. I watched its flight after it left my hand all the way until it disappeared in Warner's mitt with a smack. It curved not only that it fooled the batter. I do not remember just who he was, but I do remember that he pulled away from the plate as the ball broke right over the centre. Watching that curve took a load off the crowd and fooling the batter gave me confidence. I devoted myself to studying the batters as they came to the plate and the Phillies failed to score off me. That was my start with the Giants and I have been pitching for them ever since.

I won through that season until September without closing a game, for which I give all the credit to Warner. If ever a catcher knew how to "hold up" a pitcher it was Warner. He knew all the batters in the league. He knew just what they could not hit and it was he who tipped me off. I depended entirely upon his judgment.

McGraw still asserts that I won thirteen straight games, but I was given credit for only twelve. I was taken out to let a pinch hitter bat for me in one game and McGinnity was sent in to replace me. He was given credit for that game.

I first started to play ball at Hamilton, N. Y., where I was born. I played on the Union school team there, but as a youngster I elected to go into the carpet and furniture business with my brother, William, at Syracuse. I had been playing first base up to that time, but both my other brothers, Lew and Arthur, were pitchers. Incidentally they were both left handed pitchers. For this reason I decided to become a pitcher. I played Saturday and Sunday ball in and near Syracuse for $5 a game and thought I was getting big money for my work.

A year or so after moving to Syracuse, the town team at Brewerton needed a catcher and a pitcher. I took a young fellow named "Jimmy" Hickman to Brewerton with me. We played every Saturday and Sunday and I didn't lose a game that year. The following season we were engaged again. In one of the first games we played Brewerton lost a ten inning game. There was a minister playing second base for us that day. I do not remember his name but I remember well that it was the errors he made that lost the game for us that day. That night both Hickman and myself were released outright.

SIGNED FOR FIRST.

I returned to Syracuse and went into the carpet and furniture business again. I played very little ball the remainder of that season. During the winter I joined an indoor baseball team and played first base. It was while playing there that I was dubbed "Hooks" because I used to hook up and hook down the wild throws to my hand.

"Larry" Sutton was then scouting for the Albany New York State league club. He saw me play and signed me as first baseman. "Tom" O'Brien, manager of the club decided to use me as a pitcher. I got along fairly well until one day a fellow knocked out a homer with two runners on bases. That night I was released outright and retired from baseball. I went back to Syracuse.

Lawson, however, had seen me play, and when he organized the Scranton Pennsylvania State league he offered me a position as pitcher and I accepted. I pitched the opening game against Wilkesbarre, with "Ed" Walsh, now of the Chicago White Sox, opposing me. We won in the tenth inning by a score of 3 to 2. The league lasted about one month, and then I went back to selling carpets. It was about three weeks later that the Troy club came to play Syracuse, and Lew Rancon, the manager of Troy, was hard put for a pitcher. He had had four up to that day, but two of them had jumped the club, and there was a double-header scheduled. He offered me $25 to pitch one of those games and promised me a contract if I made good. I accepted. Everything went fine until late in the game when a Troy outfielder dropped a long fly with two on bases and both Syracuse players scored, winning the game by a score of 4 to 3 and I was signed. I finished the season with Troy and was purchased by the Giants, and reported to the Savannah club the following season. I must have made good with Savannah for on the following season the Giants picked me up when they were harnstorming in the south, and I have trailed along ever since.

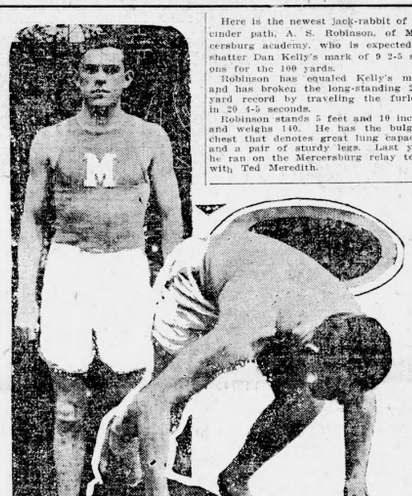
Speedy Robinson, Record Breaker



A. S. ROBINSON.

Here is the newest jack-rabbit of the cinder path, A. S. Robinson, of Mercersburg academy, who is expected to shatter Dan Kelly's mark of 9 2-5 seconds for the 100 yards.

Robinson has equaled Kelly's mark and has broken the long-standing 220-yard record by traveling the furlong in 20 4-5 seconds.

Robinson stands 5 feet and 10 inches and weighs 140. He has the bulging chest that denotes great lung capacity and a pair of sturdy legs. Last year he ran on the Mercersburg relay team with Ted Meredith.

Long Tennis Match Not Yet Settled

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, July 25.—The all-comers tournament for the Longwood tennis singles trophy was carried through to darkness last night by a match between W. M. Washburn, of New York, and E. H. Whitney, of Boston, which was still undecided when play was stopped. The men had battled through more than three and one-half hours, playing four sets, when the contest was adjourned until today. Whitney won the first and third sets, 6-1 and 6-3, and Washburn the second and fourth, 7-5, 6-3.

In the other matches of the all-comers, Beals C. Wright, of Boston, defeated R. C. Seaver, of Massachusetts champion, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1, and W. H. Johnston, the Pacific coast phenomenon, disposed of S. H. Vospell, of New York, 6-2, 7-5, 11-9.

Chance Plans Big Changes

Cree and Daniels Have Not Been Playing Good Ball, and May Lose Out

NEW YORK, July 25.—Reports of immediate changes in the line-up of the New York American league team were current upon the return of the team today from its western tour. Manager Frank Chance was quoted as disappointed in the work of "Birdie" Cree and Bert Daniels, veterans of the outfield, and as contemplating replacing them with "Slim" Ray Caldwell and Roy Hartzell, placing William McKechnie at second base, which Hartzell has been covering. Chance was said to be particularly desirous of getting Caldwell into the game regularly, as he considers him one o fthe batters on the team. He has been keeping him on the relief pitching staff.

McKechnie, late of Boston, would also be looked to strengthen the infield. Chance expects the newly purchased Zeider back in the game by the middle of August.

In discussing the deal which he got from the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Hal Chase, he declared that the reports that he had protested the deal, so that he could get Chase back to be used in some other trade was absurd.

"I simply asked Ban Johnson to compel the White Sox to pay Zeider's salary and doctor's bills until he is able to play in a New York uniform," he said, and added, "even in the hospital Zeider is worth three Chases and the fans will know what I mean when Zeider is able to play his best game."

Indianapolis Club Buys Young Hurler

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 25.—George Kaiserling, pitcher of the Indianapolis American association club, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast league team, according to a telegram received from Manager Mike Kelley, who is in Chicago seeking new players for the local team. Kaiserling is a good, but erratic pitcher.

Kelley also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young left-hander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State league. Norton has been the sensation of the Nebraska league all season.

Won't Fine Smith For Playing Ball

CHICAGO, July 25.—Pitcher Clarence Smith, of the Chicago Americans, will not feel the heavy hand of the national commission for masquerading last Sunday as a member of the Coulon Athletics, a semi-professional club. President B. B. Johnson of the American league said last night that Smith was just a youngster, knew no better and had been forgiven.

He said that the players with eastern clubs who were fined last year for playing with semi-professional teams on off days were veterans and knew they were violating rules.

No Shady Dealings In Chase Transfer

CHICAGO, July 26.—President Johnson, of the American league, announced last night, after investigation of the protest of the New York club regarding the deal by which Hal Chase was procured by Chicago in exchange for Zeider and Borton, that the New York club had no basis for complaint.

President Johnson said he had found that Zeider had played, whenever needed, for ten days previous to the trade, and for five days afterwards Borton played with the Highlanders until his batting resulted in his transfer to the Jersey City club.

Fall River in Bad; May Lose Players

CINCINNATI, O., July 25.—In a notice to all national agreement clubs, issued today, the National Baseball commission stated that unless the Fall River club, of the New England league, complied with the commission's recent award of $925, against that club, in favor of the playing manager, Lave Cross, the club will not be permitted to exercise the privilege of reserving its players, all of whom will become free agents at the termination of their 1913 contracts.

Capablanca Wins

NEW YORK, July 25.—Jose R. Capablanca scored his tenth successive win in the masters' chess tournament. The Cuban champion had H. M. Phillips as his opponent.

The leading scores are:

Capablanca, 10-0; Kupchik, 8-1; Black, 5-1 1-2; Marsher and Tenenwurzel, each 5 1-2 to 2 1-2.

Evans Downed In Golf Play

Allis, Who Holes Out 290-Yard Drive, Winner Over the Favorite

CHICAGO, July 25.—Western Champion Charles Evans, Jr., was defeated in the third round of the Western Golf association championship tournament Thursday by E. P. Allis, III, of Milwaukee. The elimination of Evans was the feature of the day's play in the third round at the Homewood Country club. The champion, who was runner-up and medalist in the national championship last year, was defeated by the Wisconsin champion on the 33d green 4 and 3, chiefly on account of consistently better putting by Allis.

Warren K. Wood, of Homewood, survived his match with Fraser Hale, of Skokie, although the match went to 39 holes. Robert A. Gardner, of Hinsdale, former national champion, defeated A. C. Perry, of Calumet, 4 and 2. J. C. LeDuc, of Calumet, defeated H. W. Lockett, of Homewood, 1 up in 36 holes.

In the semi-finals Allis will play Gardner and Wood will meet LeDuc.

The defeat of Evans was a surprise to most of the followers of the championship. Allis was at the top of his game and playing championship golf, while Evans seemed to be suffering from a lapse. Evans went to pieces in the early holes of the afternoon round, while Allis settled down and putted without a break. A sample of Evans' lapse from form was shown on the 3d hole in the morning. Evans after a good drive put his second over the green, overran the hole ten feet and missed his put by two feet. Allis started out by taking the first hole in three with a thirty-five-foot put. Allis finished the morning 3 up on the champion.

Gardner is playing in excellent form. He made his morning round in 74, 1 under par. Wood had a 76 and LeDuc 78.

Naturally people with this birthdate have the most wonderful intuitive powers and can foretell the future with keen insight. Many of the best and greatest people the world has produced were born under this sign, philosophers; statesmen, writers and especially men and women who have power to sway public opinion.

All the astrologers say that Leo men and women are invincible if they will learn the path-way of silence. They bear up under discouragement and dangers with great fortitude and boldness are their passionate nature, being quick tempered, impatient and impetuous. When angry it seems as if they would tear everything and everybody to pieces.

Learning self control, they become giants of reserve force. This time will favor the advertising of mercantile interests through The Journal Want Ads. Occupations under beneficient ruling are seamstresses, dressmakers, stenographers, nurses and bookkeepers.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

A Tariff of Cotton Futures

THERE is at present much talk of a tax of 50 cents being levied on every bale of cotton sold or handled through the cotton exchange at New York. I have never had much experience with this exchange but in recent years I am led to believe that without the New York cotton exchange the southern cotton planters would lose millions of dollars that they are now making on account of this exchange being in existence. The cotton crop of the world is of far more importance than many people think, and I never realized until the shortage last year of how much importance this crop was to the country. It is making the south the richest agricultural section on earth and the cotton planters as well as everyone who lives or is interested in the southern states should do every thing in their power to keep in existence or maintain the New York cotton exchange. The people who produce this crop and handle it, the ones that it supports and helps are not affected but little by the operation of this exchange just so long as it exists and they let alone the dabbling in futures. No sane man with a small amount of capital will undertake to deal in cotton futures. It is intended for the rich and to protect the manufacturers and also to keep a stipulated basis or price on our cotton crop that we can depend on year by year or at least twelve months in advance of the time the cotton crop is made. This is a big thing connected with the exchange. A man knows positively just what he can sell or get for his cotton, even before he plants it. The manufacturer knows exactly what he can afford to contract to supply his customers yarns, goods in finished form, hosiery and things of that kind, and when he makes his yearly contracts if he finds he is stuck or will lose this money the cotton exchange is the place that will enable him to hedge his contracts and put himself in a position where he knows positively just what he can do. It has saved thousands of manufacturers and enabled them to carry out their contracts or supply goods at the price they have contracted for and the small margin that the exchange charges for this protection is only a drop in the bucket compared to the protection it gives the outside world.

The planter especially is benefited by it more than any one, but there are but few of them that realize this. You do away with the cotton exchange and the planters of this country would find themselves in a position where it would be a hard matter to sell their cotton at all. No buyer is going to buy a lot of cotton unless he knows positively what he can get for it, and the buyers are being protected in this respect and knowing positively beforehand every day just how the market is they know exactly what to pay for this product. If there was not a certain market price every day on cotton when it was forced on the market and people bought it they certainly would buy it way down low, so as to be on the safe side or would not buy it at all. The buyers would always be gambling in an uncertain way and the producer would be the one to suffer. As it is now every buyer knows exactly where he is at all times. If a tax of 50 cents per bale was levied on every bale of cotton handled through the cotton exchange the farmers will eventually be the ones that will have to pay this tax, and while I am not as well posted on this subject as I would like to be I can safely say that it would be a great injury placed upon the farmers of the south if this bill should be passed and eventually I believe it would cause the price of every bale of cotton to depreciate at least $5 per bale. I for one am willing to let the matter stay as it is and I believe the farmers of the south would be wise to do likewise. Certainly if the congressmen in Washington believe what is written to daily by their supporters all over the south to see that this bill is passed they want to do, of course, what their supporters wish them to do and many will naturally try to pass it when they themselves know that it would be an injury, and I believe the farmers of the south are making a mistake to attempt to have this bill passed.

This tax if enacted would put the cotton exchanges out of business. Dispose of the cotton exchanges in America and you rob the farmer of the only official price making medium upon which he can depend upon absolutely as to ascertaining the actual value of his product from day to day. Wire or write your congressman and senator at once to use every effort to defeat the Clarke bill, known as the tax bill on cotton contracts.

Yours very truly,

George Bowden

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

McRae, Ga.

Will you tell me what is best to do for our chickens? I have something like sorehead, sores on the ear lobes, gills, around the eyes and nose. They seem to suffer a good deal. Eyes closed entirely. We had one that was and killed her and carried her off and buried her deep, about two weeks ago, and a few days ago another one we noticed had some sores and seemed weak and seemed to be suffering. I got some carbolic ointment and covered the sores with it and the eyes opened in a little while, and in one day all seemed to be well, but you could tell they were not well. I am afraid it is roup. My husband says he noticed, he thought, a little discharge at the nose. We take them away from the flock as soon as we notice the sores. We only have about twenty-five in the yard, about 50x100. Plenty of shade and I give them fresh water every day and clean out the porcelain pan. It is a high, sandy lot and dry. I try to keep the fowl house cleaned out often, not once a week though, but think it would be better. We give them a mash in the morning of corn meal and wheat bran and in the afternoon the mixed feed. I think it is called the Gem scratch feed, and I try to keep them something green to eat. We gave them to good while in the mash Hessie's Panaca and we tried Magic Poultry food and tonic. We do not raise any chickens just keep hens to lay and have one rooster. They are nearly all Rhode Island Reds.

If it is roup I do not want to get close to them, as I believe people catch lots of disease that way. I have catarrh and kinder think that is what started it, as we had some chickens about twenty years ago which had roup and I doctored them faithfully, but do not remember what I did for them, and don't remember that one ever got well. Just common tar will cure sorehead right away, certainly will appreciate it more than I can say or write if you can tell me what to do to save any others from it and not run the risk of taking it ourselves, and does not cost too much to doctor them.

Thanking you in advance, I am.

MRS. A. M'M.

ANSWER.

From the description given your chickens evidently have a slight touch of roup or a summer cold. If treated now it will be no trouble to relieve them without much loss. By the use of Conkey's roup cure or permanganate of potash given in the water regularly and feed given a scratch feed and also a mash once a day with some good condition powders mixed with it this will get their system in good working order and will enable them to throw off a cold and it will not go into roup. At this season of the year nearly all young chickens have more or less cold, and it is best not to doctor too much, as it keeps their systems out of order and used up can of Bee Hee Stock and Poultry Medicine. Now they are well and have commenced to lay." At all dealers. Price, 25c, 50c and $1. Bee Hee Stock Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

W. E. Browne Decorating Co. Leases Quarters at 324-6 Peachtree Street for About $5,000 a Year—Ponce de Leon Avenue Residence Sells for $15,000—Edgewood Avenue Sale and Resales—Walker Street Triangle Is Approved

Turman, Black & Calhoun have leased to the W. E. Browne Decorating company for D. C. Strother and others Nos. 324-6 Peachtree street, formerly the quarters of the Studebaker corporation. The term of the lease is for seven years and the consideration is around $5,000 a year, or about $35,000 for the term.

The owners of the property will add another story to the present building, install an elevator and make other improvements, the total cost to be $8,000. The lessee in addition will make handsome decorations in the interior.

The building occupies a space 45x90, and the lessees will have a floor space of 14,000 square feet. They will move in on January 1.

The W. E. Browne Decorating company now has quarters in the Studio building on Forsyth and James streets. It figured that it could reach its retail trade just as well further out, and get more space.

The new location is on the west side of Peachtree street, south of Porter place and across from the Frances apartments. The lot is part of the Forrest home place.

The lease is significant as showing the tendency of retail business to go out and get more space and it is the forerunner of similar leases that will be announced shortly on Peachtree street.

The lessees are home decorators, furnishing the interiors of some of the most expensive houses in Atlanta.

PONCE DE LEON SALE.

J. H. Whitten has sold through Cliff Ansley to Mrs. L. L. Whitlock No. 583 Ponce de Leon avenue, a residence property, for $15,000.

This is a two-story brick veneer house with eleven rooms. The lot is 50x200.

EDGEWOOD AVENUE SALE.

Papers were sent to record Thursday consummating the sale and two resales of a lot on Edgewood avenue beyond Capitolia street. The lot is 25x115, and is on the south side of the street 75 feet east of Cornelia street.

The first transaction was from C. S. Sullivan and wife to J. R. M. Fowler, the consideration of $3,750. Mr. Fowler resold to H. C. Stewart, who in turn sold to A. V. Gude, Jr.

TRUCK PLAN APPROVED.

The aldermen on Thursday concurred in council's approval of the petition of the A. B. & A. and the Southern railway to close across Mangum street in the Walker street development.

Ernest Duncan, secretary of the syndicate behind this development, said that work of laying the tracks would be started shortly. All the preliminaries are now being worked out.

ON TO WINNIPEG.

Harris G. White, president of the Atlanta Real Estate board, and the other local and southern delegates, are now on the way to Winnipeg, Manitoba, to the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate exchanges.

The convention opens next Monday and will be in session most of the week.

A feature of the meeting, however, will be a large number of side trips all through northwest Canada, the new wheat belt. The delegates expect to be gone about sixteen days in all.

STATUS OF BUSINESS.

Inquiries continue to be good, and indications point to steadily increasing business.

One or two agencies reported that they had had calls from loan agents asking whether they had any loan applications.

STRIKING COPPER MINERS NOISY BUT NOT VIOLENT

Governor of Michigan Orders Out Entire Militia of State

(By Associated Press.)

CALUMET, Mich., July 25.—Large numbers of copper mine strikers gathered about No. 2 Calumet and Hecla shaft this morning, but made no demonstration further than letting out occasional yells. They threatened to go to the Superior boiler house of the Calumet and Hecla and drgw the fires, but so far have made no such attempt. A move in that direction would promptly bring out the militia companies. General closing of saloons is expected, if more violence occurs.

Governor Ferris is being kept advised of the developments, and is not expected here unless the situation takes a critical turn. Last night's mass meetings and parades developed no disturbances.

The Western Federation of Miners is holding out for a conference with the mine managers, but this, it is said, will not be granted.

It is feared when troops are here the mines will be reopened. It is said most of the non-union men are willing to go to work if the shafts are guarded. Non-union English miners continue to leave the copper country on all trains.

In the strike area of seventy-five miles, 25,000 or more men are idle. These include surface and stamp mill hands. Smelters continue operating. The strikers, for the most part, are young, unmarried Austrians, Finns, Hungarians and Bulgarians.

Governor Orders Out Whole State Militia

(By Associated Press.)

LANSING, Mich., July 25.—Practically every company of the Michigan national guard is either on its way to the copper mine strike district or will entrain as soon as cars are available. It was expected that more than 2,000 state militiamen would be in the strike zone before tomorrow night. Several companies already are reported there. Brigadier General P. L. Abbey, head of the state militia, left last night for Calumet to take charge of the situation.

SIXTY HOWLING CONVICTS TAKEN FROM SING SING

Transfer of Desperate Second-Termers Made to Auburn Prison to Avoid Mutiny

(By Associated Press.)

OSSINING, N. Y., July 25.—Sixty convicts—the dregs of the New York criminal class—were taken one by one from their cells in Sing Sing prison today and placed aboard a train for the state prison at Auburn.

Recent riots in Sing Sing caused the warden to take no chances. Each convict was heavily handcuffed and shackled and then ordered to his place in the railroad car which had been brought inside the prison enclosure.

A hundred prison guards did this work in a few minutes. Then they took away a company of naval militia waited for a call to protect the town in case the transfer of convicts resulted in a prison mutiny.

There was little sleep in the prison last night. At intervals some of the prisoners would start to howl and bang on their cell doors.

The din would increase as it was taken up down the line of cells and continue until the angry convicts had worn themselves out. It was scarcely daylight when the early night shift of guards was relieved by the keepers who had charge of transferring the sixty second-term men to Auburn.

When the convicts were brought out to the car Sing Sing suddenly awoke. More than a thousand prisoners rushed to their cell windows and cursed and howled and yelled threats at the keepers.

The task of the prison authorities was not ended when they got the prisoners aboard the car. On the train to which this car was attached they expected to find friends and relatives of the convicts and threats had been made that attempts to release the second-term men might be looked for anywhere between Ossining and Auburn.

For this reason there were almost as many guards aboard the train as there was convicts. Two of Ossining's finest were detailed to each car. Another guard was placed on the platform between each two cars and the entire party was under the command of a captain.

The warden and the prison officials are not expecting any attempt to release the prisoners en route to Auburn, but they got the men away from Sing Sing as quickly as possible to avoid any chance of trouble.

After he had left the prison of second-term men to be transferred to Auburn, Warden Clancy expected to have no more trouble in keeping order in the remainder of the second term convicts are to be sent away. To them and a few of their more desperate sympathizers the warden attributes the disturbances that broke out at Sing Sing this week, the two fires in the prison shops and the attempt to murder a negro convict whom the mutineers regarded as a traitor.

WOMEN OF CHICAGO WANT MRS. E. F. YOUNG

Will Demand That She Continue Superintendent of Public Schools

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 25.—Plans for a huge mass meeting of women to protest against the resignation of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, as superintendent of Chicago's public schools, were set on foot as soon as it became generally known today that Mrs. Young had decided to quit. That she should have been influenced to present her resignation by the conduct of members of the board of education unfriendly to her personally aroused the indignation of many prominent women.

Every woman's club in the city has been notified of the meeting, which probably will take place Sunday evening at the Auditorium theater.

"The resignation of Mrs. Young is a calamity," said Miss Jane Addams, of Hull House. "If she was forced to resign by opposition to her policies, steps immediately should be taken to sweep away the opposition. Chicago cannot afford to lose a woman of Mrs. Young's force of mind and executive power. Sentiment is unanimous that to accept her resignation would be a tremendous blunder."

Mrs. Young stated in her letter of resignation that "I shall be relieved from laboring under that handicap or indefiniteness which influences a person in making plans to be executed by another almost from their inception."

SUFFRAGETTES PLANNING NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Will Penetrate All "Dark Territory"—Start of "Pilgrims" to Capitol Begins

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Plans for a widespread campaign for "votes for women," to be carried into all the states of the union not now having woman suffrage, will be laid at a conference of the national council of the women voters here August 13, 14 and 15. Announcement to this effect was made today at the congressional committee headquarters of the council.

Delegates to the conference will be present from Wyoming, Kansas, Utah, Idaho, Colorado, Washington, California, Oregon and Arizona, the states having full and complete woman suffrage. The state of Illinois, where women recently won a modified right to the ballot, also may be granted representation.

Ways and means of bringing influence to bear locally in the various states still considered "dark territory" by the suffragists will be considered at this conference, which will be executive.

Thirty-eight members of congress have signified their intention of attending the banquet to be given by the "pilgrim" suffragists who will storm congress Thursday. Several of these have promised to deliver addresses. The "pilgrims" are converging on Washington in automobiles from all points of the compass, according to a statement issued today from the headquarters of the National American Woman Suffrage association.

The entrance examinations will take place next March. Twenty-six senators so far have not made nominations and in forty-four states and th eterritory of Alaska from one to eight congressional districts remain unrepresented in the list of candidates.

'CURRENCY BILL ON ROCKS' SEEMS TO BE A MISTAKE

President Makes Satisfactory Headway in Reconciling Differences

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 25.—President Wilson endeavored today to reconcile differences of opinion among the Democrats of the house banking committee on the administration currency bill. It was covered that the administration supporters would make an effort to have their bill reported soon with a hope that the fight on amendments would be settled in the Democratic caucus.

The president spent most of the forenoon with Representative Wingo, of Arkansas, one of those opposed to certain features of the bill.

"The Democrats certainly can and will get together on a bill before long," said Mr. Wingo after the conference.

The president's conference last night with the house leaders of the party who have been recommending certain changes was described today as satisfactory, and administration officials were optimistic that the differences would be adjusted. The president arranged to see Representatives Eagle and Ragsdale Monday. They have been prominent in opposition to the Glass bill.

It was learned today that the president regards it as inexpedient to inject currency legislation into the jumble of the Pujo money trust committee, and that he has pointed out the necessity for keeping the recommendations based on these findings separate.

Frequent conferences are looked for at the White House early next week, with a view to speeding the administration bill through the house committee.

Chairman Owen, of the senate banking committee, said today that on a personal poll of senate Democrats, he had found 47 who favor taking up currency legislation in the August session, and two who favor a recess of congress and a postponement of action until fall. Two Democrats were absent and not included. Senator Owen said he had also found six Republicans who favor immediate action. He expressed the opinion that differences in the committee would not delay the senate in consideration of the bill after tariff revision has been disposed of.

of the veniremen will be eliminated because they are opposed to capital punishment.

As a result, it is not improbable that before twelve jurors are chosen to decide Frank's fate, bailiffs will have to bring many talesmen into court.

Harry Scott and H. L. Pierce, of the Pinkertons, were in conference with Solicitor Dorsey Friday afternoon. Both the Pinkertons and the solicitor declared there was no significance in their meeting.

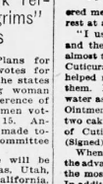
ECZEMA DISFIGURED FACE BADLY

Also on Hands. Broke Out in Pimples. Itched Badly. Spread All Over Body. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Hampton Springs, Fla. — "I had had eczema on my face and hands for about three years. My face was badly disfigured.



The eczema broke out in pimples and itched so badly I would scratch it all the time. It was the most irritating disease I have ever had. I broke out on my face and hands and it spread all over my body. I had great large sores all over me, caused from the scratching. It so bothered me day and night so that I could not rest at all.

"I used three remedies for skin disease and they didn't give relief at all. I was almost terrified until a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. They helped me from the time I started to use them. I used the Cuticura Soap and warm water as a wash and then put the Cuticura Ointment on the sore places. I only used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and was cured." (Signed) Mrs. Ida Parker, Dec. 2, 1912.

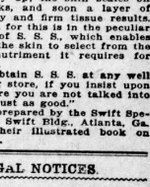
Good Time Now for Blood Health



Blood Disorders Gone to Stay.

A few doses of that wonderful blood purifier S. S. S. start activities in the cellular tissues of the body and soon show decided changes in the skin. The skin is but a fine network of tiny blood vessels, and the specific action of S. S. S. is declared to be a pronounced stimulation of the activity of these cells. Certain it is that in a surprisingly short time any skin eruption shows a most remarkable change; it begins to dry up; the skin peels off in tiny flecks, and soon a layer of clear, healthy and firm tissue results. This is due to the fact that the particular stimulation of S. S. S., which enables the cells in the skin to select from the blood the nutriment it requires for regeneration.

You can obtain S. S. S. at any well stocked drug store. If you insist upon it, but be sure you are not talked into something "just as good."

Notice is hereby given that on August 4th, 1913, application will be made to the Judge of the superior court of Fulton county, Ga., at the court house in said county, for an order authorizing him as guardian for Richard R. Corley and Myrtice N. Corley, or sell for the purpose of reinvestment, the following property of his said wards, to-wit:

An undivided one-eighth (⅛) remainder interest each in the following real estate:

All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the city of Atlanta, Ga., known as Number 153 Randolph street and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at a point one hundred and ten (110) feet, (by the original lines) north of the northeast corner of Randolph street and Houston street and running thence east one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet, thence north sixty-three (63) feet, thence west one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet, and thence south along the east side of Randolph street sixty-three (63) feet to the beginning corner.

The reason for making said application is that the improvements thereon are old and depreciating in value and its condition will necessitate the expenditure of considerable money to make it conform to the present modern requirements. Said property is no longer desirable as white residence property and is rapidly depreciating as such. Said property will become more expensive continually to keep in order and in repair.

AFTERNOON SESSIONS TO BE HELD BY THE SENATE

Upper House Prepares for Strenuous Work on Appropriations Bill

In preparation for the busy week which faces the senate beginning Monday that body considered a motion on Friday which provides for afternoon sessions until the appropriation bill of the general tax committee is acted on.

The motion was introduced by Senator Smith and was referred to the rules committee. President Anderson announced, however, that it certainly would be acted upon favorably, as the afternoon sessions for a time at least would be necessary if the senate expected to clear away the mass of bills confronting it.

In addition to the tax and appropriation questions the senate has a number of special orders on important measures on next week's calendar. The medical practice bill is set for a special order, the eugenic marriage bill is set as a special order for Wednesday. Senator Tarver's probation bill is a special order for Wednesday.

Friday's session was a short one, the senate adjourning to meet again at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Two general bills were passed, one conferring upon the railroad commission the authority to require railroads in towns where two or more roads enter to provide union depots. The bill was amended so that the financial condition of the roads affected should be considered before such depots are ordered.

The major part of the senate's session Friday was taken up with discussing Senator Searcy's bill providing that it shall be a misdemeanor for a party to purchase liquor for another party from a blind tiger. The bill was killed by vote of 22 to 18 after four attempts had been made to have it indefinitely postponed. The opponents of the bill seemed to think that it would aid the blind tigers rather than injure them. They declared that it would close the mouth of the intermediary buying liquor, and that thus no evidence against a blind tiger could be secured.

Senator Searcy's Bible reading bill, which was reported unfavorably by the committee, was voted to remain on the table, although Senator Seacy wished to have it taken up.

The senate concurred in the report of the committee which kills the so-called "pure shoe" bill.

The bill which gives the Atlanta circuit a fourth judge of the superior court was recommitted to the general judiciary committee on request of Senator Hule, who said that as Atlanta's representative in the senate, he wished to inquire into the merits of the bill befort it was acted upon by the senate.

BETTER CAR SERVICE ON EAST LAKE LINE SOON

Improved Service on Saturdays and Sundays Will Go Into Effect Immediately

An improved street car service on Saturdays and Sundays is to be inaugurated on the East Lake street car line by the Georgia Railway and Power company.

This new service is to begin on Saturday and will be afforded every Saturday and Sunday until October 15. Several extra cars will be put into commission on the days affected and from 12:15 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. on each Saturday and Sunday there will be a fifteen-minute headway between the cars instead of thirty minutes as is now the rule.

The inadequacy of the street car service on the East Lake line has been the subject of complaint to the state railroad commission which suggested an improved service to the street car company. The latter company has adopted the suggestion.

A similar suggestion relative to service on the McDaniel street-Irwin street route met with favorable action from the street car company. Beginning Monday, cars on this route will be operated during the morning and afternoon rush hours on a fifteen-minute headway, instead of twenty minutes, as heretofore. The new schedule will apply betwen 5 a. m. and 9 a. m., and between 5 p. m. and 8 p. m.

Short Peach Crop

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 25.—Reports from the districts north of here indicate that the peach crop this season will not be more than one-tenth as large as that of last year. The estimate of the railroads for this season is twenty-five cars for the district against 250 cars last year. The first car was shipped north Thursday night. Late frosts and lack of rain at the proper time are held responsible for the shortage of the crop.

ATLANTA LAWYERS URGE NEW JUDGESHIP BILL

Fourth Judge, to Preside Over Fulton Criminal Court Exclusively

Reuben R. Arnold, president of the Atlanta Bar association, and Attorneys Luther Z. Rosser, Burton Smith and Edgar Watkins, visited the senate chamber at the capitol Friday morning to urge the prompt passage by the senate of the bill to create a fourth judge of the superior court, Atlanta circuit.

The bill, which was introduced by the Fulton delegation at the request of the bar association, has already passed the house, and Senator Byron Huie, of this district, who will father the measure in the senate, assured the committee from the bar association that he expected the measure to pass without opposition.

The bill leaves the appointment of the judge in the hands of Governor John M. Slaton, and while a number of well known Atlanta lawyers have been quietly working for the job, it is said that the appointment will be given to Judge L. S. Roan, of the Stone Mountain circuit, who has been presiding over the criminal division of the Fulton superior court by a special act of the legislature.

Judge Roan recently moved to Atlanta from Fairburn and the chances are very much in favor of his getting the appointment from Governor Slaton.

R. R. Commission

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GREENSBORO, Ga., July 25.—The question of the location of the new depot to be erected at Union Point will be decided by the Georgia railroad commission in a few days.

Judge George Hillyer and J. A. Perry, two members of the commission, were in Union Point today looking over the ground where the Georgia railroad proposed to erect the new station, and also heard the reasons why the citizens of Union Point objected to the proposed location.

CORONER PROBES DEATH OF MOOSE APPLICANTS

Supreme Council Probably Will Take Action Against Birmingham Lodge

(By Associated Press.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 25.—While no warrants have been issued yet in the death of two men at the meeting of the local lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose last night, the deaths being caused by electrocution during an initiation, post mortem examination was held on the body of Christopher Gustin, one of the victims, and it showed to Coroner Spain no other cause of death than an electric shock. The wife of Donald Kenny, the other victim, is prostrated and unconscious from grief.

Secretary Williams, of the local Moose lodge, today issued a statement in which regret is expressed at the death of candidates had been accorded no harsher treatment had been accorded the men than at other times.

ELDERLY PEOPLE NEED PODOLAX
When folks get along in years, their daily life and their daily habits are not so active as they used to be. The body is apt to "let down" somewhat and feel that it is entitled to a well-earned rest. But it's not so; you mustn't permit it. Most important of all, keep your liver working right up to the mark—and do it with a gentle but positive stimulant like PODOLAX—not with mere physics, (which don't touch the liver at all) nor, on the other hand, with dangerous calomel or violent saline purgatives. Your bowels no longer have the elasticity of youth; they can't recover quickly enough from the exhaustion which violent purgatives are certain to cause.
PODOLAX is particularly fine for elderly people because it increases the flow of the liver's secretions and thus enables the liver to HELP ITSELF—gently, healthfully, positively. You'll like PODOLAX; it will give a new edge to your appetite, new tone to your stomach and splendid regularity to your daily habits. Get a bottle at your druggists; take a little at bedtime tonight. Tomorrow you'll be glad you got acquainted with PODOLAX.

POISONING FROM FOOD

Every Bite May Poison — All Could Be Methuselahs If We Did Not Shorten Life by Self-Poisoning.

All food eaten leaves in the stomach some waste, unused particles. This waste ferments and generates uric acid, and when uric acid gets in the blood it poisons the system. This is termed Autotoxemia, or Self-Poisoning. Constipation, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick headache, languidness and a weakened physical condition result. Eliminate Autotoxemia, and we could live to be hundreds of years old.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT flushes stomach and bowels, dissolves the uric acid which has accumulated and expels it with the fermenting waste.

Take JACOBS' LIVER SALT in the morning before breakfast. You will do a better day's work, and with the consciousness that your health is safeguarded against any indiscretion in eating.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is better than calomel for constipation and biliousness. Acts quickly and more thoroughly, requiring no cleansing after-dose; causes no after-danger of salivation; never gripes or nauseates. No other liver medicine is equal to it; don't take the inferior substitute that may be offered. All druggists should have the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. 25c. If yours cannot supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage prepaid.—(Advt.)
